YANKS CUT OFF GERMANS IN ITALY

ENEMY IS PUT IN BAD SPOT BY 5TH ARMY

CONTINUED RETREAT TOWARD ROME DUE WITHIN HOURS

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

A four-way allied attack on Vinchiaturo road junction, central communications key to the Nazi delaying stand across the Italian peninsula, appears to be developing. It bids fair to shake the foe loose from the whole Volturno-Biferno River front in a matter of hours.

The Fifth Army's crossing of the Calore River in force to take Pontelandolfo put General Clark's right flank within less than 20 miles of the junction down the Tammaro Valley due south. Directly to the east on the Rome-Foggia main highway, 8th Army elements at Gambatesa were not much more distant, while to the north other 8th Army units astride the Biferno were closing in along both sides of the river with a little farther to go.

Huns Must Run

There seems no alternative for the Nazi but a quick withdrawal in the center south of Vinchiaturo to escape an allied entrapment. With the fall of Vinchiaturo, the enemy front would be broken, compelling withdrawal probably behind the Senagro River on the east flank and to a line based on the Gaeta-Sora road up the valley of the Liri on the west.

It is possible, of course, that 5th Army break-through across the Calore is aimed at a flanking sweep westward down the river to its junction with the Volturno and thence down the right bank of the Volturno. The upper course of the Volturno above the Calore confluence, must be crossed in that case, however, and the drive northward instead to take Vinchiaturo in a multi-pronged pincer grip would yield larger and quicker results.

Frontal Attack Avoided

It would also follow exactly the tactical pattern envolved by General Eisenhower's staff in the battle of Sicily. In the fast-paced fight to push the foe off the big island without a costly frontal attack on the Mount Etna bastion, Allied staff work relied heavily on swiftly shifting the stress of turning movements from the center to the left or coastal flank and back again as opportunity offered.

The Volturno loop offers a well protected but local line of defense immediately north of Naples. It could become a serious trap for the enemy if held too long against an Allied advance in the center. The river comes down a valley paralleling the coast to its junction with the Calore, then flows southwestward to the sea across the Volturno plain.

An Allied break-through to Vinchiaturo junction, where the Rome-Foggia and Salerno-Termoli highways cross at right angles, would dangerously threaten defenders of the Volturno loop with being cut off from the rear. There is much to indicate that its evacuation for some other front to hold up the Allied march on Rome is in immediate prospect unless the Germans are ready to risk a major battle for Vinchiaturo.

Must Replace Divisions

Once beyond the Volturno, the 5th Army would have set its feet on both forks of the Rome-Naples road while inshore an Allied advance up the Rome-Foggia road would turn the upper end of the Biferno front delaying the 8th Army. It would also threaten to turn the Sangro line, the next formidable river position blocking 8th Army advance up the Adriatic coast; and Nazi withdrawal across the breadth of the peninsula for a new short-line delaying front at some selected point could be expected.

Latest front-line reports indicate that at least seven Nazi divisions out of an estimated total

TROUT STREAM CASE REVERSED

Supreme Court Declares Fishing Waters May Not Be Blocked

Lansing, Oct. 11 (AP)—The state conservation department won its suit in the state supreme court today to prevent trout streams from being blocked against use by fishermen.

With one dissenting voice, the court reversed a lower court decision by Circuit Judge Earl C. Pugsley, Fremont Evans and Herman Dehnke sitting en banc on the right of William G. Taggart of Big Rapids to place obstructions in the Little South branch of the Pere Marquette river adjacent to his property in Newaygo county.

Sportsmen have followed the case closely, fearing an adverse decision of the supreme court would mean the closing of hundreds of miles of trout streams.

The supreme court reaffirmed principles laid down years ago in the widely-known Collins-Gerhardt case which held that a stream was navigable if it had been used or was being used to float logs. If such is the case, the court reiterated, the public has a right to fish in the stream.

The court said its decision goes slightly further than that of the Collins-Gerhardt case because in the Taggart dispute the stream admittedly only could float logs during spring freshets. The decision does not affect small trout streams on private property which have not been used for boating or logging.

The sole dissent was filed by Justice Howard Wiest, who dissented in the original Collins-Gerhard case.

No House Support Given Sales Tax

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY

Washington, Oct. 11. (AP)—Neither Republicans nor Democrats, as a party, appear likely at this stage to support a 10 per cent federal sales tax, but the idea shapes up as the big issue in writing legislation to funnel new billions into the wartime treasury.

Some legislators from both groups lined up today against the tax, proposed by Rep. Robertson (D-Va.) as a substitute for the administration's battered program to raise $10,500,000,000 through higher levies on individual and corporate incomes and on so-called luxuries.

Air Freight Cars Carry Three Tons

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP) — Flying freight cars, an innovation in commercial airline service, will go into coast-to-coast operation for United Air Lines between New York, Chicago, and California Oct. 16, C. P. Graddick, director of United's Air Cargo Department, said today.

He said the planes would carry approximately three tons of cargo as compared with an average of 1,400 pounds carried on United's combination passenger-cargo mainliners.

Germans Kill off 19 Dutch Citizens

Bern, Switzerland, Oct. 11 (AP)—Nineteen Dutch citizens, including two girls, were put to death by Nazi authorities October 1, the Bern newspaper Der Bund said today in an Amsterdam dispatch.

A communique printed in Dutch newspapers was quoted as saying one of the two girls aided saboteurs while the other was accused of killing a police prefect.

Allies Speed Up Balkan Offensive

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 11 (AP)—By land, air and sea the allies have gradually developed an offensive in the Balkans until it has become a companion campaign to that in Italy.

With allied air forces of both Northwest Africa and the middle east scorching the Germans in Greece, Crete and the Dodecanese Islands, and Greek and Yugoslav Patriots battling them on land, the Balkan fighting today is more extensive than at any time since the British evacuated their expeditionary force in the spring of 1941.

At least a dozen German divisions are engaged in an effort to hold fast in the dark and bloody mountains.

A communique issued in Cairo by the Yugoslavs disclosing that Italian naval units had aided their Partisans by shelling the Germans along the Adriatic coast indicated that a sea punch has been added to the allied effort.

For the sixth straight day allied airforces carried a sizzling attack to the enemy in Greece and the islands of the Aegean yesterday and took an increasing toll of German air strength in that area, allied headquarters announced.

Flying Fortresses again made a 1,500-mile round-trip without fighter escort to blast the Nazi air base of Tatoi, just outside Athens, and the airfield at Araxos at the northwestern tip of the Peloponnesus, while RAF bombers joined in the assault on the preceding night by striking at other airfields at Maritza and Calato on the Island of Rhodes in the Dodecanese.

These blows followed a series of raids announced yesterday in which eight airfields in Greece, Crete and Rhodes were attacked.

In the 23-minute bombing of Tatoi yesterday the Fortresses ran into 20 to 30 Nazi fighters, but shot down four of them.

Refugees arriving at Bari, on Italy's east coast, have disclosed that some Italians in Greece and Albania joined the Patriot guerrillas. Others turned thier arms over to the Greeks, Albanians and Yugoslavs. The Germans have had to occupy many regions formerly entrusted to Italian garrisons.

The Germans have moved 2,000 troops into Valona and other Albanian ports to meet a possible allied invasion from Italy, it is reported.

FEDERAL JOBS TO ESCAPE TAX

Court Rules Contractors Need Not Pay Sales And Use Tax

Lansing, Oct. 11 (AP) — The State Supreme Court today ruled that the State Revenue Department may not impose the sales and use tax on materials used by contractors for the construction of Federal government projects.

Sales tax officials, declining to comment on the decision until they had studied it, said they estimated that a "substantial" amount of state revenues might be involved.

The court ruled in the appeal of the R. C. Mahon company, contractors, and held that Michigan law expressly forbids such taxation.

Walter F. Reddy, deputy revenue commissioner, said the department has been imposinug the tax on the basis of a U. S. Supreme Court decision in an Alabama case which held that the Federal government in each case was buying a completed structure from the contractor and that materials purchased for the job preceded the change of title. The state court said the Alabama decision was nullified by Michigan law.

The court unanimously upheld the right of the state board of dentistry to impose strict rules covering advertising by dentists and forbidding "fee splitting."

Gas Coupon Values Cut In Far West

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration today cut the value of A, B and C gasoline coupons in the far west from four to three gallons, effective at 12:01 a. m., Tuesday, October 12.

The curtailment order is effective in the states of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Colorado and Arizona.

The OPA action followed immediately after Harold L. Ickes, Petroleum Administrator for War (PAW), had announced establishment of the first gasoline quotas for the area. Ickes and the OPA said the order was necessary because of tremendously increased military demands.

MORE SOLE LEATHER

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP) — The War Production Board (WPB) today channeled to civilians additional supplies of sole leather for shoe repairs.

The civilian increase is the second boost in as many months.

CHINESE TO GET U. S. CITIZENSHIP

President Pushes Bill; House Leaders Say It Will Pass

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP) — President Roosevelt urged Congress today to let Chinese enter this country and grant American citizenship to them and the Chinese already here.

"We owe it to the Chinese," he said in a special message heartily approving legislation the House will take up next week to repeal the old Chinese exclusion law and extend citizenship.

Enactment of the repealer would "correct a historic mistake" and extension of the privileges of citizenship "would operate as another meaningful display of friendship" for a gallant ally, Mr. Roosevelt argued.

The 1940 census showed 37,242 foreign born Chinese in this country, and if Congress should put immigration on a part with other countries, 105 more could be admitted annually.

House leaders say the legislation will succeed, but there is some opposition.

The opposition springs from the historic stand against what is sometimes called "collie labor"—early Chinese immigrants helped build transcontinental railroad lines for $35 a month. It has been argued that any relaxation of immigration bars might set a precedent which would lead to a flood of immigrants contesting with native Americans for jobs.

Hardwood Lumber Price Hike Asked To Aid Production

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—An army representative joined lumber wholesalers today in recommending a hike in the ceiling price for hardwood lumber to boost slumping production.

Col. Fred G. Sherrill of the army engineers' procurement office told the house small business committee that the price raise seems necessary to obtain adequate supplies.

G. A. Vangsness, Chicago, secretary of the National Association of Hardwood Wholesalers, also urged the increase and acknowledged that many small mills able to get logs are not producing because of present prices.

The reason, he said, is because the wholesalers do not have enough margin to finance the producers, most of whom are small, par-time operators.

Oldest U. P. Dentist Dies In Marquette

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. Raymond W. Boyer, 74, oldest practicing dentist in the upper peninsula, died this afternoon in his home here. He had been ill for six months.

Dr. Boyer, a resident of Marquette since 1891, had practiced dentistry here continuously for 52 years, giving up his work only when forced to do so early this year because of failing health.

He had been associated with the Marquette branch prison for more than 45 years, holding the appointment as prison dentist under 12 different wardens.

Penn Road Wreck Is Ruled Accident

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (AP)— A coroner's jury ruled today that the Labor day wreck of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Congressional Limited, which killed 79, was accidental.

The jurors' report held that the cause of the wreck was a "hot box." The cause of the hot box, it added, was not established by the evidence.

The Washington to New York express, carrying a holiday crowd, piled up at Frankford Junction here Sept. 6 in one of the worst disasters in rail history.

GOMEL'S EAST SUBURBS FALL TO RED ARMY

DNIEPER WEST BANK GRIP WIDENED IN UKRAINE

BY JUDSON O'QUINN

London, Tuesday, Oct. 12. (AP)—The Red army captured Gomel's eastern suburbs yesterday, killing 3,000 Germans and clearing the left bank of the Sozh River opposite that vital rail hub in lower White Russia, and also widened its grip on the west bank of the Dnieper in the Ukraine, Moscow announced early today.

A broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet Monitor said 1,000 Germans were slain in "fruitless" enemy counter-attacks seeking to stem the Russian surge beyond its three initial Dnieper River bridgeheads.

Kiev Defenses Pierced

(A London radio broadcast recorded by CBS said Soviet forces already had "penetrated the outer defense of Kiev," Ukraine capital on the Dnieper).

The capture of Novo-Belitza, a rail junction suburb of Gomel, and other localities across the Sozh River from the main prize, threatened the early flanking of the entire 200-mile German line in White Russia and the severance of the enemy's already feeble connections with German Ukraine positions.

Gomel, whose railways radiate to Warsaw, Minsk and Mogilev, is the southern anchor of the German White Russian line and the center of an industrial area just above the edge of the Pripet marshes.

Crimea In Pincers

Two hundred miles to the north other Soviet units converged on Vitebsk, upper anchor of the enemy's defense line in White Russia.

At the southern end of the front Soviet Black Sea fleet airmen struck a "blow on an enemy port," presumably in the Crimea, which is now threatened from two sides by the Russians, and sank a 2,000-ton enemy transport and 11 barges and cutters, the communique said.

Dispatches reaching here said there was a possibility the Germans already were pulling out of Kiev as successful Russian crossings above and below the capital imperilled the city, which already is under fire from Soviet big guns mounted on the eastern bank just across the Dnieper.

Moscow dispatches said Red army engineers had accomplished some of their finest feats of the war to keep Russian tanks and mobile artillery rolling into battle day and night over boggy fields and roads made treacherous by fall rains.

Communications Shattered

Furious German resistance was acknowledged by the Russian

PENINSULA FIRE DANGER EASED

Flames Under Control; Volunteer Fighters To Be Released

(By The Associated Press)

Danger from forest fires which have ravaged an estimated 6,747 acres of Michigan's upper peninsula was eased tonight as state conservation officers asserted the flames had been brought under almost complete control.

Only two fires were still out of control, the conservation said the so-called 2,500-acre Arnold fire, 30 miles south of Marquette and the 300-acre fire near Baraga.

Soldiers and state troops who have been helping volunteer fire fighters battle the blaze were expected to be released if weather and woods conditions remained unchanged.

At the same time, conservation men pressed an investigation in efforts to determine whether any of the fires had been set by arsonists. Milton Bergman, of the Marquette regional conservation office, said there was "reason to believe" that some of the fires had been started deliberately.

The department said since Thursday 84 fires in the upper peninsula have burned 6,747 acres of land, 5,500 in the Marquette area. Seventy fires in the lower peninsula burned 384 acres in the same period.

Twelve fires broke out Sunday in the Traverse City area as the result of sparks from railroad trains, the department said, and section crew "speedsters" have been assigned to follow all trains in the area to watch for new fires.

Midget British U-Boats Damage Mighty Tirpitz

BY PUGH MOORE

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—British midget submarines, penetrating the heavily-guarded Norwegian hideout of the German fleet, have crippled the mighty battleship Tirpitz and left her apparently immobilized.

Three of the small subs—a hitherto undisclosed weapon for the British—are missing. A group of the submersibles, 1,000 miles from home, threaded their way some 50 miles into narrow Alten fjord, through mine fields and heavy patrols, to attack the Tirpitz Sept. 22, an admiralty announcement today disclosed. They attacked the Tirpitz beneath her waterline.

The size of the raiding force was not disclosed, but the announcement said that three submarines had failed to return and there was a possibility some of their crews had been captured by the Germans.

The admiralty said it was impossible to assay the damage at the time of the attack, but reconnaissance photographs taken three weeks later showed the 35,000-ton pride of the Nazi fleet had not moved from her anchorage and oil spouting from her great tanks had spread for two miles.

Details on the size and complement of the little undersea craft were not announced.

Mine fields were penetrated and enemy protective forces were avaded before the midgets could come within striking distance of the fleet in confined waters.

The reconnaissance photographs showed the great battleship surrounded by smaller vessels presumably either in repair work or supplying light and power to the crippled giant.

Two days after the attack, the Germans announced officially that a thrust by midget submarines had been repulsed and that prisoners had been taken.

The admiralty indicated in its report that other powerful battle units were anchored near the Tirpitz, but claimed damage only to that battleship.

CHERSO SEIZED BY YUGOSLAVS

Whole North Dalmatian Coast Under Control Of Liberation Army

BY A. I. GOLDBERG

London, Oct. 11. (AP)—The Yugoslav liberation army claimed tonight the capture of the important island of Cherso, which commands the entrance to the Gulf of Fiume, and said it controlled the whole coast of northern Dalmatia except for the German-occupied fort of Zara.

In addition to holding the northern Dalmatian coast, the Yugoslav patriots said they had occupied all of the Myriad Islands along the coast.

Other fresh successes announced by the patriots as their forces were engaged in wide-spread operations along the whole northeastern arc around the shores of the Adriatic and along railway lines leading from the coast to German supply bases and railroad junctions in the interior, were the capture of Bijeljina, 75 miles south of Vinkovci and about the same distance west of the former capital at Belgrade, the town of Kamnica near Brecica in Slovenia and the Slavonian town of Cacen on the Zagreb-Vinkoci railway.

Indications of political unrest in the Balkans came with the German DNB news agency's announcement that the puppet Croat cabinet headed by Nikola Mandits had resigned. DNB gave no indication of the makeup of the new cabinet.

Hurricane Kills 52, Injures 102; Headed For United States

Mexico City, Oc. 11 (AP)—The Pan-American meteorological service said tonight that a hurricane which swept the west coast of Mexico and left 52 dead and 102 injured along a 150-mile stretch around Mazatlan was headed for the United States.

The report said that the hurricane, which struck Saturday, was whipping Chihuahua state on the United States border after streaking across Sinaloa and Durango. It was moving toward Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, the report added, but much of its force was spent.

PLENTY OF BEANS

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP) — A 1943 bean crop of 22,770,000 bags of 100 pounds each, a decrease of 1 per cent from the forecast made on Sept. 1 but still the greatest bean crop on record was forecast today.

WEATHER NEWS BANS REMOVED

Papers May Now Carry Forecasts Without Limitations

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The office of censorship tonight relaxed restrictions on the publication and radio broadcast of weather forecasts, declaring the changes are justified by "improved defense and other war conditions."

At the same time, Director Byron Price announced the office is reviewing other censorship regulations with the idea of determining whether further modifications may be "possible and advisable in the national interest."

Effective at 12:01 a. m., eastern war time, Tuesday, radio stations will be permitted to broadcast weather forecasts for the first time in more than a year. They are still prohibited, however, from mentioning wind directions and barometric pressures in current or past weather except as authorized under an emergency warning by the weather bureau.

Newspapers no longer will be limited to publishing weather conditions within a radius of 150 miles of the city in which they are published, nor will they be limited to the number of weather forecasts they may carry. Under existing regulations, newspapers could print only the forecasts for the state in which they are published and for not more than four adjoining states.

Sport fans who have had to be content with the simple information that a game had been "postponed" now can be told whether a rainstorm or some other weather condition caused the postponement.

The office emphasized that only official weather bureau forecasts are to be printed or broadcast.

NAZI DEFENSE LINE MENACED ON VOLTURNO

AMERICANS BATTLE WAY THROUGH STICKY MUD

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 11 (AP)—Fighting their way northwestward from Benevento through sticky Italian mud, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces have captured Pontelandolfo and thrown into jeopardy the entire Nazi defense position along the floodswept Volturno river north of Naples.

Seizure of Pantelandolfo, 12 miles beyond Benevento, placed the allies astride a main highway which winds westward to the Mediterranean coast above the Volturno. The Nazis either must meet this new threat successfully or soon resume their full-scale withdrawal toward Rome.

Rains Swell River

Allied patrols were reported skirmishing with the Germans on the north bank of the Volturno, but no immediate effort to cross the stream in force was expected. German artillery was concentrated to lay a destructive fire on the more obvious crossings of the swollen river.

Ordinarily the Volturno is only waist deep, but recent rains have sent water racing between its steep 10 to 15-foot banks. The winding stream varies from 100 feet to 200 yards in width.

With Clark's main forces stalled temporarily against this water barrier, the allied air force made shattering attacks against the Nazi defenses along the river, particularly at a point about five miles north of Capua.

Mines Take Toll

Fleets of medium, light and fighter-bombers—the same "flying artillery" that was used with devastating effect in Tunisia—bombed and shot up dozens of enemy gun positions along a 40-mile front.

On the Adriatic end of the Italian fighting line Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British and Canadians of the Eighth army were reported slugging their way slowly forward against intense opposition, averaging gains yesterday of between two and three miles along the Biferno river.

Delayed action mines left in Naples by the withdrawing Germans continued to take a heavy toll. A dispatch from Reiman Morin of the Associated Press disclosed that the explosion which killed at least 2 American officers and men yesterday and injured more than 30 was the fourth such heavy blast since the city was occupied.

Institutions Ban Butter Substitutes

Lansing, Oct. 11 (AP)— County infirmaries and hospitals are forbidden by law to serve butter substitutes at meal time, in opinion of the attorney general said today.

The opinion told the Lapeer county social welfare department that the legislature had specifically forbidden use of butter substitutes in any public institution and that, butter shortage or not, there was no way around the ban.

WRITERS PICK IRISH AS BEST

Experts Show Unanimity In Weekly Football Popularity Poll

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Notre Dame ranks as the nation's best football team today following one of the greatest shows of unanimity ever expressed in the Associated Press' weekly polls to determine the 10 top teams in the country.

Ninety-nine experts participated. Eighty-six of them marked the Irish as best. None of the remaining 13 voters ranked them lower than third.

The Irish, who bopped Michigan by a 35 to 12 score last Saturday, thus received 941 votes of a possible 990, counting one first place ballot as 10, a second as nine and giving eight points for a third place ranking.

Army, which all but annihilated Temple in its most recent outing, grabbed second place and Navy moved to third while Pennsylvania shot to fourth. Each received a single first place ballot and climbed at the expense of Michigan, erstwhile second placer, who dropped to ninth following its licking by the Notre Dame machine.

Michigan Ninth

Purdue vaulted to fifth and Duke sank to sixth following its one-point setback by the strong Navy aggregation.

With service teams eligible for the first time this year, Iowa Pre-Flight marched to seventh place and was followed by Southern California, Michigan and the College of the Pacific in that order.

The latter, coached by Amos Alonzo Stagg, is the only newcomer in the present listing as compared with the inaugural ranking of a week ago. The Far Western outfit downed California, 12 to 6, and ousted idle Minnesota from the select circle.

Two California service clubs had considerable backing in their own area with Del Monte Pre-Flight getting six votes as the best team in the country and winding up as the leader of the second ten. Next came March Field with four first place votes.

Four of the leading teams are from the Midwest, three from the East, two from the Far West and Duke the lone representative of the South. The Southwest, usually with at least one team among the top ten, has Southwestern and Texas A & M holding seventeenth and eighteenth places respectively.

Hunting And Fishing

By Sid Gordon

TWO KINDS OF GROUSE

There are really but two kinds of grouse, in my opinion, which amount too much in Wisconsin or Michigan. Those two are the ruffed grouse and the sharptail grouse, the partridge and the sharptail, as we call them.

Our other two species, the spruce grouse and the prairie chicken, do not amount to much as far as sport is concerned. The spruce grouse is a dumb bird and never should have an open season as its numbers are entirely too few.

The prairie chicken, our pinnated grouse, does not offer much sport to the hunter. Not that he is one whit less sporting to hunt in the field than the partridge or sharptail. He is just as hard to shoot, just as good eating and as fast on the wing as any upland bird.

* * *

His numbers are too few to offer any sport to the hunter. What man who calls himself a good sport in the woods, a fair hunter, would willingly kill off any species which was dwindling to the danger point in his state?

* * *

There is no question but that the prarie chicken seems doomed in Wisconsin. Here is a bird which once offered the best marksman, hunters from all over the world, a great deal of good shooting and the best of food.

It is true that the hunters shot them by the thousands in Wisconsin in the old days, yet they multiplied in great numbers. Those who are against all shooting need not blame the hunters. They can derive no satisfaction from their depleted numbers through blaming it upon the sportsmen.

Nature is to blame, nature and man. Now we are trying to correct it by law, by closing the hunting season on them entirely, this year. This is but a makeshift for closed seasons will never bring them back in the numbers which they once showed.

We had no great prairies like those of the Dakotas, yet there was much prairie land in Michigan and Wisconsin. In Wisconsin there were great open areas for miles around the Wisconsin Rapids territory.

Here were birds, chickens, in great numbers. Occasional fires cleared the areas and kept them clean of the jackpine, the scrub-oak and the popple. The "chicken" is a bird of the prairie, its name, prairie chicken was an apt and a descriptive name.

* * *

The fires were kept out, the scrub oak acorns were buried by the squirrels and the bluejays. The millions of aspen seeds blew and took hold over the land. The jackpines opened their cones and their seeds took root.

* * *

Neither hunter nor the nature lover did anything to stop this invasion of the prairies. Prairie chickens do not want timber cover. Now much of the land is covered with thick growth of "popple," jackpine and scrub oak.

Their range, their feeding grounds, nesting grounds and soaring places were gradually so reduced that they had no homes, compared to the wide area of their former range.

It was the consensus of opinion, a mutual agreement between the hunters and the scientists, that the season should be closed on them this year. The sharptail is included in this shooting ban this year.

* * *

I am of the opinion that the sharptail should not have been included except for one thing. That one thing is, that the great majority of hunters cannot tell a flushed chicken from a sharptail until after the bird is shot.

* * *

The sharptail can winter through as well as a partridge. Both are budders and will grow fat on the buds of the birch and the buds of people. During a hard winter they may suffer some for lack of other foods but their habit of budding will keep them alive in good numbers.

The prairie chicken will not bud, a hard winter may kill hundreds where but a few sharptail and partridge would winter kill. Its habits give the sportsmen and the game manager a headache but I think I see a little hope in the future.

The skinny growths of jackpine, of popple and of scrub oak on the peat soil, and acid land, will never make good sticks of timber. You'd starve, as many have, on this poor soil if you farmed it.

Yet lumberman may bring it back. Some day when his plywood products, his pressed woods and all ground up timber will be needed for the market we may see him clear all this land of poor timber with great machines. Just as the farmer mows his hay, someday will the mills mow down this small stuff. Only then will the chickens come back in numbers on these opened areas of good size, hundreds of acres of "cleared" lands

BIG LIBERATORS RAID MAKASSAR

Dutch Celebes Jap Base Hammered In Flight Of 2,400 Miles

BY C. YATES McDANIEL

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Tuesday, Oct. 12 (AP)—Making their fourth 2,400-mile round trip flight from an Australian base, American-manned Liberator bombers unloaded 25 tons of explosives and started huge fires among docks, fuel and oil depots at Makassar, Dutch Celebes.

The raid, staged Saturday night and from which all the big bombers returned, was disclosed in today's communique from headquarters of General MacArthur.

It was the first raid on the Japanese base at Makassar since Aug. 18.

Monday, Dutch-flown Mitchell medium bombers maintained pressure in the area northwest of Australia with strikes on enemy bases on the Kai and Tanimbar Islands.

Off the southern tip of New Ireland, a Liberator last night bombed and set a medium sized enemy freighter afire some hours after Australian Beaufort bombers either sank or seriously damaged a 2,000 ton cargo vessel in the same waters.

The Japanese airforce continued ineffectual, small-sized raids in both the south and southwest Pacific areas. In the largest one, on the Allied base of Buna, New Guinea, 14 enemy planes caused minor damage Sunday. One raider was brought down by anti-aircraft fire.

NEW ASSIGNMENT

Iron River—Maurice C. Christensen, timber sales assistant of the Iron River district, Ottawa National forest, will leave tomorrow for Laurel, Miss., to become forest ranger of the Chickasawhay unit, Mississippi National forest. He will be accompanied by his family.

Christensen has been active in forest work here for eight years, and also served at Kenton, Sidnaw and Ontonagon.

He will be succeeded here by Lloyd W. Leppanen, Ironwood, who has been employed for several months in forest timber work.

NEWSPRINT DUE FOR MORE CUTS

Papers May Be Forced To Curtail Size Due To Shortage

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP) — A possibility that an increasing shortage of paper may force American newspapers to curtail their size drastically was raised today with a warning that supplies of newsprint may be cut next year 20 to 52 per cent under this year's levels unless more men are found to cut the pulpwood from which paper is made.

The warning came from the joint Anglo - American - Canadian committee which has been investigating the pulp and paper situation. It urged immediate action, including use of war prisoners to bolster the force of pulpwood cutters in the United States and Canada. It estimated about 38,500 additional men are needed.

The committee, in a report to the combined production and resources board and combined raw materials board, advanced two proposals to keep 1944 paper consumption in line with present estimates of production.

Under one, the allotments of newsprint, printing papers and wrapping papers would be cut 52 per cent under 1943 quotas. This would mean a reduction from 3,620,000 tons of newsprint this year to 1,750,000 tons in 1944 — making virtually inevitable revolutionary changes in the present sizes of newspapers.

Such a drastic cut would be necessary, the committee said, only if the curtailment were confined to newsprint, printing and wrapping papers. As an alternative, it said that if the reduction is spread on a pro rata basis to all paper use, there would be approximately 2,900,000 tons of newsprint available next year, or about 20 per cent less than in 1943.

Grand Jury Resumes Session In Lansing

Lansing, Oct. 11. (AP)—The taking of testimony in Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr's one-man grand jury investigation of bribery and attempted bribery in the legislature was resumed today following a two weeks' recess, with a member and former member of the house of representatives as witnesses.

The witnesses were Rep. William G. Buckley and former Rep. Joseph L. Kaminski, Detroit Democrats.

Others will follow them to the stand during the week, Attorney General Herbert J. Rushton said as the chief prosecutor of the inquiry. He declined to identify them or indicate whether some new phase of activity by legislators or lobbyists was under scrutiny.

The attorney general said the grand jury was "trying to tie up some rather important odds and ends" and that no good purpose would be served by discussing them now.

NOTED EDUCATOR DIES

Pittsburgh, Oct. 11 (AP)—Col. Samuel Harden Church, noted educator, Republican and president of Carnegie Institute, died tonight. He was 85 last Jan. 24.

ONCE VISITED CALUMET

Calumet—The death several days ago in Sweden of Carl Edvard Johansson, 79, world famous inventor of the precision gage, and brother of Harvey Johnson (Johansson) of Copper City, recalls to local residents Mr. Johansson's frequent visits to the Copper Country for reunions with his brother. Mr. Johansson was well known in Calumet and made many friends during his trips to this district. His last visits here were in 1935 and 1936, prior to his departure for his native Sweden. Harvey Johnson was advised of his brother's death by cable.

GETS PURPLE HEART

Menominee— Wilfred C. Eckman of the Army, who lived with his cousin, Edward Johnson, Daggett township clerk, was wounded on July 11 when his division captured Gela, Sicily, and has been awarded the Purple Heart for gallantry in action.

Eckman is a nephew of Mrs. Charles A. Hassel of 518 Michigan avenue and of Mrs. Jesse Paris of 634 Almyra street. His parents died when he was a baby.

of 20 to 25 now in Italy, are being used in delaying the Allied advance on Rome. Most of them have been continuously in action or in retreat for weeks, however, their organization, equipment and morale must be showing the effects of that, even though there has been no major action since the Salerno beach-head fighting.

It follows that the Nazi command must soon replace those divisions or heavily reinforce them. If it develops that some of the first line troops brought from the Russian front to meet the Italian crisis have been returned eastward because of the grave situation for the Germans on the lower Nnieper, it is obvious that the Nazi choice in Italy must be to fall back anew, even to give up Rome with only delaying action, rather than thin the main defense line on the Po or just south of it in the Etruscan Appennines.

Bradley Takes Rap At OCD Activities

Washington, Oct. 11. (AP)—Rep. Bradley (R-Mich.) said in the house today that "It is about time that this congress act to curtail the un-American activities of the office of civilian defense."

He said he believed the OCD's "block plan" for covering all households might be aimed at impairing American independence.

Bradley said an article in the Chicago Tribune showed block captains were hearing speeches which raised a question whether OCD meetings contributed to civilian war services or to civilian defense.

"Let us insist that the OCD stick to its knitting and not have its speakers going around the country educating block leaders to advocate the surrender of American independence," Bradley urged.

MEXICO LURES MANY TOURISTS

Hotels, Cafes In Capital Are Crowded, Says Correspondent

BY ROBERT FRIERS

Mexico City— War or no war, thousands of pleasure-seeking American tourists are pouring into Mexico every month to give this country one of its biggest tourist booms. Mexico City's hotels are jammed worse than those in Washington, D. C. Restaurants are crowded. Theaters are packed. Ciro's, the swankiest night club, is doing a land-office business with money laden Americans paying 100 pesos as a minimum cover charge.

Sounds surprising in wartime? Here are the July border crossings for Laredo, Texas alone: 1,377 Americans entered Mexico by bus, 1,458 by rail, and 203 by plane. But by far the largest number of southbound travelers (5,348) drove their own cars across the Rio Grande. About three-fourths of these were from Texas, the remainder scattered among all the rest of the states.

Mexican Riviera

Most of these tourists are content to drive only as far as Mexico City. However a new section of the Pan-American Highway is now open to traffic for over 400 miles south of the capital and one can now motor through Oaxaca and past the ancient ruins of Mitla. This is the main road to the Panama Canal and the entire route is expected to be completed within two more years.

Americans are finding that one of the most fashionable of all pleasure spots is Acapulco, located on the "Mexican Riviera." Regular airplane service is maintained between Mexico City and this colorful Pacific beach. American movie stars are coming here in droves now that their other foreign haunts have been made inaccessible by the war. I saw Errol Flynn swimming at Caleta Beach, and lunching at "Los Flamingos" on the same day were Mary Boland and Lon Chaney.

Detroiters Settle There

Incidentally, "Flamingos" is a most unusual hotel. About eight years ago the Spencer Andersons, tiring of a drab life in Detroit, came to Acapulco. They bought land on the cliffs 500 feet above the sea, and on these cool and breezy heights they built one of Mexico's finest resort hotels. Gaudy parrots and sad faced little monkeys sit about in palm trees to give the place an authentic tropical atmosphere. Prices are high and the food is excellent. As in Mexico City, the rooms are usually all sold out in advance. The Andersons do not intend to come back to Michigan winters for a long, long time.

After the war, officials expect even more tourist traffic. And that's not the only boom anticipated. American capital is once again beginning to flow south of the border. New lands are being developed to keep pace with the expending highway program. Hundreds of square miles will be opened up on the Atlantic coastal plain between Tampico and Vera Cruz. A flood of immigration is expected from war-shattered Europe. Today, one sees new buildings and new factories springing up all over the republic.

Here our good neighbor policy is succeeding. Cultural and economic ties are being strengthened. A new Mexico is looking forward to a more industrialized future and to ever increasing harmony with the United States.

GOMEL'S EAST SUBURBS FALL TO RED ARMY

communique, which said 126 enemy tanks had been knocked out during Sunday's fighting, and 85 planes shot down.

The smash into Novo - Belitsa made Gomel's fall an imminent possibility.

In the north, Russian troops were less than 20 miles from Vitebsk and above that sector other units were plunging toward the Latvian border through the shattered German line at Nevel.

The Germans were reported throwing in large reserves on the Nevel, White Russian and Dnieper River fronts, but an avalanche of Russian gains piled up since the beginning of the Soviet offensive July 12 have so chewed up axis communications that the Germans no longer can easily switch material and manpower to threatened sectors.

Both Russian and German dispatches make it clear that the Red army has a clear-cut initiative of attack all along the 1,200-mile front from Leningrad southward to the Crimea.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi radio commentator, devoted most of a broadcast to describing the battles on the northern approaches to the Crimea, ignoring the menaced White Russian front where he said "German disengagement moves have not been quite completed."

Supervisors Adopt $156,524 Budget; Face $15,049 Deficit

PLAN INCREASED COUNTY INCOME

Delta Government Needs Reform, Is Opinion Of Supervisor Logan

The Delta county board of supervisors in annual October budget session yesterday established a 1944 budget totalling $156,524.33, which is $15,049.51 above anticipated income for next year.

Total estimated income for 1944 is expected to be $141,474.82.

While not in an altogether lenient mood, the county board did restore some expenses which the finance committee had recommended eliminated, and thereby boosted the county's expected deficit $675 above the tentative figure established by the committee.

Cause of the county's present financial difficulty was traced back to the spring meeting of the county tax allocation commission, when one mill, representing $16,000 in tax revenue, was taken from the county and allocated to the schools.

Cost Up, Not Down

While it would seem that the cost of county government has been reduced because of the reduction in millage, and a cut of approximately $10,000 in the welfare department, actually the cost of county government under administration of the board of supervisors has increased $4,360 over this year.

County expense, less welfare, in 1943 totalled $92,358. Under the budget approved yesterday the cost of county government, not including welfare, will in 1944 total $96,718, which will be $4,360 more than this year.

One reason for the increase is $1,500 additional for elections in 1944, presidential election year. Another major item of cost was maintenance of the Webster annex, which will cost over $2,000 for the year. Besides this minor salary adjustments were made for clerk hire in three departments.

The cost to the county for its share in the welfare department was reduced almost $10,000.

Need More Income

Supervisor Henry Wylie, chairman of the board's finance committee, advised the supervisors that plans were being made by the committee to increase the county's income. How this would be accomplished he did not say, but it was presumed to mean an upward revision of assessed valuations. A statement is expected to be ready for the board, perhaps at its January meeting.

"The 1943 county budget contained no provision for reducing the deficit in the county general fund and it was impossible to set aside any money in this (1944) budget for that purpose," Wylie said.

"It is absolutely imperative that the county general fund be placed on a sound financial basis just as soon as possible. No further economies in the operation of our county government can be made without imparing the essential public services which our county government provides for the people of this county, so the only solution is to increase the county income.

"A study will be started on this problem immediately and I am hopeful that we may have some recommendation to make to you on ways and means of increasing the county income at a later date," he said.

Needs "Reforming"

The struggle with the budget brought from Supervisor Peter N. Logan of Escanaba a charge that county government, not only here but elsewhere is "wasteful and inefficient."

"I would say that this county is the least inefficient in the state and yet here we are struggling along trying to meet a deficit. Under this system of county government it can't help being inefficient.

"There is not a department or a person in county government who isn't doing their job. I know that. But our county government hasn't had a reform since it was first organized.

"It can't be changed by our saying so, I know, but we should work for a state law to permit the reforms we need. It would be a good thing for Delta county, would let it work economically and efficiently.

"I'm not bringing this up for action today—just something for us to think about," Logan concluded.

There was no discussion on the matter.

County Is 'Stuck' With Airport, Board Advised

Delta county cannot break the 15-year lease and option under which it will pay Mr. and Mrs. John M. Olson of Gladstone a total of $1,500, plus taxes on the property, for the use of 160 acres of land on which is located an airport two miles southwest of Gladstone.

The "airport" has not been used for many years. The field is grown up in high grass and shrubs, and the buildings, built as a county-sponsored PWA project, are now nearly ruined. The lease was entered into ten years ago, and the county is to pay $100 a year for 15 years.

Prosecuting Attorney Torval E. Strom, in an opinion requested by the county board, reported yesterday:

That in his opinion the lease and option does not give the county the right to cancel, nor does it provide for the county to dispose of the building.

"The county board is bound by the agreement and the only way out might be an amicable agreement with the lessors. Perhaps they might release the county from the lease if they are permitted to keep the buildings," the prosecutor said.

He also pointed out that there are now but two members of the board still serving who were on the board at the time the lease was signed ten years ago.

"It is hardly proper to say they were wise or unwise at that time, because they had plenty of authority for what was done, and good reasons at that time. The lease is good and can't be broken," he added.

Supervisor O. J. Thorsen summed up the matter thus:

"In other words we pay out about $1,600 and at the end of 15 years we have nothing."

Russo-Finnish War Is Subject of Talk At Service Clubs

Personal experiences during the Russo-Finnish war and his return trip on the refugee ship, American Legion, from Petsamo, Finland, were related in an interesting talk by Rev. John A. Kallman of Gladstone at the meetings of the Kiwanis and Lions clubs here yesterday noon and last night.

Reverend Kallman immigrated to America from Finland in 1905, and returned to his homeland in 1937. He was serving as pastor of a church in his home town when the Russians invaded Finland in November, 1939.

The speaker told of the magnificent resistance put up by the outnumbered Finnish soldiers. In one sector, the Finns had five divisions of Russian troops surrounded and were preparing to annihilate them when the Helsinki government signed a peace treaty. The war was a terrible strain on the small Finnish nation, Reverend Kallman said, for the army received little outside aid, and was forced to give up when its supply of ammunition and other war materials gave out.

The war ended in March, 1940, and Reverend Kallman, his wife and son, James, had to wait until August for passage back to America on the S. S. American Legion, which carried 981 passengers. He described touching scenes aboard the ship coming home, including a burial at sea, Catholic and Protestant religious services, and other happenings.

The Kiwanis club will meet with the Rotary club at the Delta hotel next Monday, the change being necessitated by the fact that the Delta Bridge League will hold its tournament at the Sherman hotel dining room all afternoon.

WITH THE COUNTY BOARD

The Delta county board yesterday acted on the following matters of business:

Approved giving the post-war planning committee authority to plan projects for the development of the county's parks after the war.

Reduced the salaries of County Road Commissioner August Larson and E. J. Noreus to $360 a year, and continued Commissioner Marcus McNabb at $500 a year, in conformity with recommendations of the state auditors.

Approved resolutions (1) Ordering the county clerk not to extend credit for circuit court fees; (2) Requiring all bills submitted to the county to be itemized; (3) Increasing the sheriff's allowance for boarding prisoners from 85 cents to 90 cents per day per prisoner in 1944; (4) Ordering all travel expense bills to be itemized when submitted; (5) Approved the hiring of William A. Frederickson of Gladstone as county sanitarian, succeeding Ursell Doane, transferred.

Authorized the buildings and grounds committee to investigate the possibility of closing the second floor of the court house for the winter, and holding county meetings in city council chambers at city hall.

Agreed to the sale of about seven acres from the county to the city. The property is located near the fair grounds on US-2-41 and one parcel had been owned by the state highway department, since returned to the county road commission. Cost of the land is $1,145.

Bark River Lions Meeting Tonight

Bark River, Mich. — The Bark River Lions club will hold their semi-weekly meeting and luncheon at the Salem Lutheran Church Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The Ladies' Aid Society of that church will serve.

The guest speaker will be Rev. James G. Ward of St. Stephen's Church of Escanaba. Three new members will be inducted, John R. Anderson, Oten B. Brisbane and R. N. Dahlberg.

Let's end it quick with oversubscription of War Bonds now! Invest in War Bonds for a profitable payoff that can't miss!

Cannot Audit Welfare Bills, Board Is Told

A suggestion by Supervisor Peter N. Logan of Escanaba that bills of the county welfare department be checked and approved or disapproved by a committee was described yesterday by Board Chairman O. J. Thorsen and Prosecutor Torval E. Strom as illegal and outside authority of the county board.

Supervisor Logan brought the matter up in a discussion of the budget, which shows the county has appropriated $59,806 for welfare in 1944. He questioned whether the relief bills were approved by the county, and was told by Chairman Thorsen, advisory member of the county welfare commission, that state auditors did that.

"Well, in my opinion a county committee should go over them. If we can question the bills in other county departments, why not the welfare department. It wouldn't cost the county anything and might bring a saving," Logan replied.

Thorsen explained that it would take a committee three or four days each month.

"You couldn't get through all of them. Everything is taken care of. You don't have to worry about it," Thorsen said.

"I'm not questioning that it isn't being taken care of, but county money is being spent and I think it should get some attention," Logan said.

Later in the meeting Supervisor Logan again broached the subject with the statement that if the "county doesn't audit welfare bills, why audit any?"

"There's a legal question involved," Chairman Thorsen said. He called on Prosecutor Strom, who said the county board, under the welfare laws, is an appropriating body only, and can refuse to appropriate funds for welfare but it cannot audit the welfare department's accounts.

"The only way you could check on welfare department expenditures would be to have the department agree to it," the prosecutor added. "I think they would agree to have a committee do this, but I do not believe you have the legal authority to do it."

Supervisor Logan observed that "there must be something wrong with those who made such a law."

"I attend every welfare department meeting. If you have no confidence in me, I won't do it," Chairman Thorsen said.

"This isn't a matter of confidence; it's a matter of principle," Supervisor Logan replied.

"Have you a motion to make on the matter?" Thorsen asked him.

"No, I haven't—seeing it's illeg," Logan said.

Jail Two Girls For Entering Dock Area

Two 18-year-old girls, Joyce LaChapelle of Escanaba and Mary Alice Gardener of Wells, were sentenced to serve 60 days in jail each at their arraingment yesterday in Justice Henry Ranguette's court on a charge of tresspassing into the Escanaba ore dock defense area.

The girls were taken in custody by the coast guard at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and were turned over to the city police. Coast guard authorities said the girls had been warned several times to stay out of the area.

No alternative of a fine was provided in the sentence. An appeal has been made by relatives of Miss LaChapelle to have her released to return to Duluth, where she is said to be employed in a defense plant.

"Unbelievable—the Wartime CRANKCASE MUCK We Found"

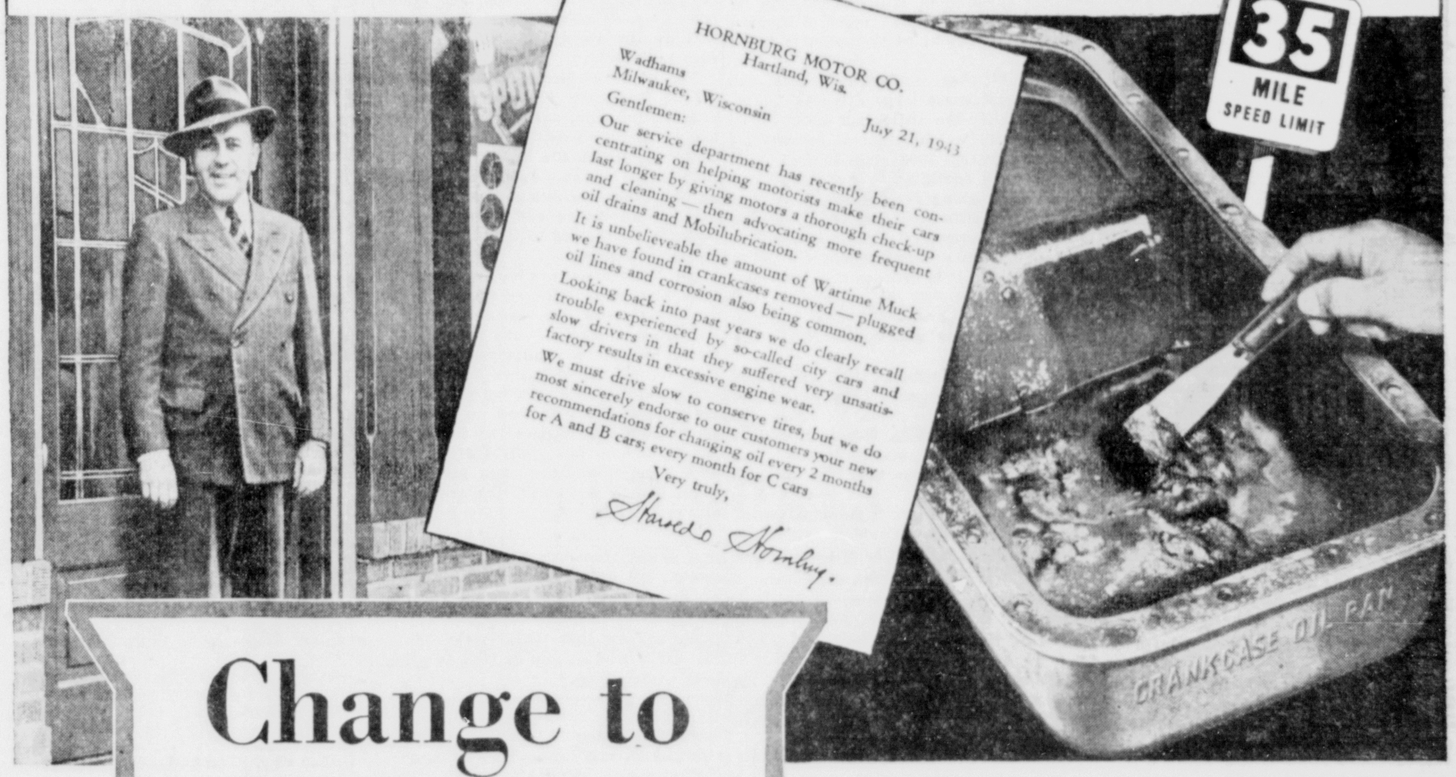
SAYS HORNBURG MOTOR COMPANY HARTLAND, WISCONSIN



HORNBURG MOTOR CO.
Hartland, Wis.
Wadhams
Milwaukee, Wisconsin
July 21, 1943
Gentlemen:
Our service department has recently been concentrating on helping motorists make their cars last longer by giving motors a thorough check-up and cleaning — then advocating more frequent oil drains and Mobilubrication.
It is unbelieveable the amount of Wartime Muck we have found in crankcases removed — plugged oil lines and corrosion also being common.
Looking back into past years we do clearly recall trouble experienced by so-called city cars and slow drivers in that they suffered very unsatisfactory results in excessive engine wear.
We must drive slow to conserve tires, but we do most sincerely endorse to our customers your new recommendations for changing oil every 2 months for A and B cars; every month for C cars
Very truly,
Harold Hornburg
35 MILE SPEED LIMIT
CRANKCASE OIL PAN

Change to Fresh Mobiloil

☛ "A" and "B" Cars Change Every 2 Months — "C" Cars Every Month!

In the four months since Wadhams published its first warning advertisement on the dangers of Wartime Crankcase Muck, scores of mechanics have confirmed the effect of low speed, short trip driving in their day-after-day motor inspection and overhaul. Here's what is happening to engines now to contribute to putting over 4000 cars off the road every day:

1. Your lower wartime driving speeds, necessary to save your tires, mean lower engine temperatures.
2. Hence, soot, water and raw gasoline—formerly vaporized by hot, high-speed, long-distance runs—now seep down into your car's crankcase.
3. The "Wartime Muck" that results cannot lubricate vital parts properly—serious damage may follow through clogging of oil screen and oil lines.

Fight "Wartime Muck" with: First — drain crankcase oil . . . change to clean, fresh Mobiloil at once. *Second — drain oil more frequently to keep down further contamination . . . follow the new oil change recommendations as shown in the shield.

*If you haven't been draining oil frequently, accumulations of muck may be very heavy. There is only one safe way to remove it. Have the oil pan taken off by your favorite mechanic and thoroughly cleaned. This is a precaution well worth the slight expense.

Two Main Objectives

IN DIRECTING draft boards to reclassify all 3-A registrants, most of whom are pre-war fathers, by the end of the year, the state headquarters of Selective Service is accomplishing two significant objectives.

First and most important, the increased tempo of reclassification will bring the total number of men in the armed forces nearer the established goals. It is essential that the men who are to be selected for military service be called for training as rapidly as possible so that they will be ready for whatever duty that is required. Secondly, the registrants themselves will appreciate speedy decisions in their cases so that the uncertainty will be eliminated. The abandonment of family dependency as a cause in itself for deferment makes all pre-war fathers in the 18-38 age group subject to induction. Only a percentage of them, 10 percent on the basis of present estimates, will be called by the first of the year. These men have a right to know at the earliest possible moment just what their status in the manpower pool is so that they can plan accordingly.

The effort of Selective Service to force men beyond the present military age who are engaged in so-called non-deferrable activities to shift to essential jobs under threat of military induction has failed. This was an improper approach to the problem anyway, and it is well that the Army declined to become a weapon for a labor draft that Congress sidestepped as too hot to handle.

Registrants who are engaged in any of 149 critical occupations, whose services are regarded as indispensable to war production, will get virtually a blanket deferment under the new reclassification schedule. Men employed in any of 35 industries listed as essential will also be considered for deferment but wherever replacements as available, men in this category may be called for military service.

Presumably, most of the pre-war fathers who will be called to service in the forthcoming months will come from the two categories listed at the bottom of the manpower pool. They are the men engaged in so-called non-deferrable activities who are between the ages of 18-38 and men employed on jobs not classified on any list, sometimes known as "no-man's land" in the manpower pool.

Chiang Makes Vow

ACCEPTING the presidency of the Chinese republic, Gereralissimo Chiang Kai-shed pledged that he would work persistently for the early establishment of constitutional government and the defeat of Japan and other aggressor nations in cooperation with the Allies.

There has been some criticism that China is not a democracy as the term implies. However, it must be remembered that China has been at war with the Japanese for several years, and even before was embroiled in civil conflict as rival military governors engaged in a struggle for power. Under such conditions, China has been pretty much under martial law, with the democratic rights of the people restricted temporarily for the common good, much the same as they have been in the United States, Britain and other nations involved in war.

But Chiang Kai-Shek has become imbued with the ideals of democracy, much of his education along this line being due to the inspiration and advice furnished by his good wife, who spent some of her student years in a girls' school in the United States. They represent the new leadership in China, and it is encouraging to all those who believe in democracy that they are pointing the way to greater freedom and opportunity for their people.

When leaders have such high ideals and humanitarian purposes, it behooves us that we should give them all possible aid to achieve their laudable objectives. If this assistance is denied, certain factions in China might rise to power through evil connivance with the Japanese enemy and impose a dictatorship that would impede the progress of that great nation for years. The Chinese, with their strength of character and tremendous natural resources, have great potentialities for advancing world civilization. It is a bet we cannot afford to overlook.

Chief Paper Waster

WHILE the newspapers of the nation are being warned that the supply of paper is becoming increasingly scarce, it is again not out of place to raise the question why the government itself continues to waste this critical material.

The editorial wastebaskets are still overflowing with government literature which comes in constant flow from Washington. Publicity releases, pamphlets and franked congressional speeches come in each mail, but little of it can be used, especially in these times when newspapers are forced to save on space in every way possible.

Canada is a heavy producer of pulpwood and paper, but you will not find the Dominion government as wasteful as ours. Recently, the Daily Press received from a high official in Ottawa a letter, which contained writing on both sides of the sheet of paper. Such a thing is unheard of in this country. Instead, bureaucratic red tape here insists upon eight to ten copies of each official form. Other cases of extravagant use of paper are legion.

Sneaky Nazi Terrorism

SEVERAL American soldiers are reported to have been killed in an explosion caused by a time bomb which had been placed by retreating Nazis in barracks recently occupied by our forces in the vicinity of Naples.

Previously, the Nazis left a time bomb in the only hotel left undamaged in the Italian city as a trap for General Mark Clark of the American Fifth Army. The explosives were discovered in time to prevent any tragedy, however.

For apparently no reason at all, the Nazis also placed a time bomb in a large postoffice, resulting in death and injury to scores of Neopolitan men, women and children. No military benefit was achieved by the dastardly trick, but this is the Nazis' idea of how a war is to be waged.

By such terroristic acts, the Nazis are simply piling up more hatred for themselves. Brutality has not subdued the Norwegians, Czechs, Danes and other conquired people, and mort certainly it will never win their loyalty. For centuries, there will be undying animosity toward the Germans, all because of the uncivilized tactics or the so-called Nazi supermen. Unfortunately, it will make the cross of the really good German people harder to bear in the years to come.

FISHING TUG SOLD
(Milwaukee Journal)

A 40-foot Diesel-powered fishing tug, owned by Conrad and Urban La Fond of Two Rivers, has been sold to a Michigan fisherman. "The way fishing regulations are at present," said Capt. Conrad La-Fond after the sale, "it is impossible to continue operations."

In other words, Capt. La Fond makes the state law responsible for the present situation. He suggests it is because of regulations that Wisconsin commercial fishermen find their catch reduced. If net regulations permitted the catching of smaller fish, he implies, there would be no trouble.

Why is it commercial fishermen just cannot seem to understand that net regulations which permit catching smaller fish today will have to be revised to permit the catching of still smaller fish a year from now—if that method of keeping up the total weight of the catch is to be followed?

Why can't they understand that the only way to insure large catches indefinitely is to let the little fish grow up to real size and weight, to real commercial value and to real food significance?

If there is anything wrong with our commercial fishing regulations, it is that they became fixed and really protective too late. If commercial fishing is now unattractive despite unprecedentedly high prices for fish, it is because the fishermen had so little interest in preserving the fish population of the lakes that they, in effect, killed the "goose that laid the golden eggs."

We doubt that the situation in which Wisconsin commercial fishermen find themselves is anything near as serious as they contend but, even if it is, this does not argue for lower standards and less vigilance from the conservation authorities.

Rather, it argues for a continuation of high standards and redoubled vigilance, lest commercial fishing be wiped out entirely in Wisconsin waters.

WORDS TO WATCH.

* * *

DEBACLE sometimes comes out of the radio as "DEB-uh-k'l." But the accent belongs on the second syllable.

Debacle is a French loan word. In that language and in English the customary meaning is "A sudden breakdown; a humiliating failure." But its primary and original meaning is "The breaking up of river ice in the spring."

First choice: dee-BAH-k'l
Second choice: dee-BAK-'l

HEINOUS is not a three-syllable word. Do not say "HEE-nee-uss." Heinous is from the French hai-neux, meaning "hateful; malignant; malevolent." The first syllable of heinous rhymes with may, day, thus: HAY-nuss.

GRIEVOUS is another word that is frequently and erroneously given three syllables, as, "GREE-vee-uss." But obviously, "-vous" should not be mistaken for "-vious." Be sure to say: GREE-vuss.

Mistaking "-vous" for "-vious" also causes MISCHIEVOUS to be mispronounced, "miss-CHEE-vee-uss." But careful speakers will place the accent on the first syllable, thus: MISS-chi-vuss.

GOVERNMENT: Ah, here's a word for you!

Commentator: "GUV-munt."
Bureaucrat: "GUV-uh-munt."
Congressman: "GUV-er-mint."
No runs; no hits; three errors.

To pronounce the word correctly, one simply places "-ment" at the end of the word govern, thus GUV-ern-ment

Enough Fair

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—There may be some misunderstanding about the function of the Red Cross in war. Without going into the history of this organization which may be read in the encyclopedia and other reference works, it stated briefly that in war the Red Cross operates under the Geneva convention and enjoys certain immunities and privileges in consideration of an understanding that it confine itself strictly to merciful works, shuning political activities and severely avoiding participation in military operations. Like all revocable agreements, the convention is based on good faith and any action which tends to impugn the sincerity of any of the contracting parties jeopardizes those for whom the Red Cross exists. Subterfuge, which is not only customary but instinctive in politics, is extremely dangerous if resorted to in the operations of the Red Cross.

—HAS SOLEMN OBLIGATION—

The Red Cross, therefore, has a solemn obligation to humanity to resist all temptation and pressure, whether political or personal, to permit any use of its credentials which an enemy, composed of savages, could construe as a breach of faith. There may be occasions when individuals will ask the Red Cross to give them the guise of Red Cross workers as an excuse for trips to various theaters of war. A journalist, for example, unable to obtain travel facilities from the military authorities, might ask for temporary Red Cross status so as to accomplish the same end. A politician, bent on a political mission, might offer a very plausible argument in support of a request for such credentials, if the politician happened to possess a record of generosity to Red Cross collections and of prominent, if dilettante, Red Cross activity. Mere plausibility, however, is no substitute for sincerity, and any individual who accepts the guise of a Red Cross worker to cover other purposes and activities more than compensates in discredit to the ideal of the Red Cross, the fleeting and superficial benefits accomplished on a given mission.

—POLITICIANS MUST LAY OFF—

The enemies of the United StSates have a strong interest in the internal politics of our country. This being so, all political personalities on either side of the presidential contest have an obligation as citizens to keep hands off the Red Cross and refrain from embarrassing its leadership with requests of doubtful sincerity. It would be a flagrant violation of the convention for an American general to don a Red Cross uniform to make a journey of inspection. It would be little less questionable of an active party politician to resort to the same subterfuge in order to circulate among the troops and stimulate them to send home to their relatives who will do the voting, favorable reports on that individual.

The office of director of the Red Cross is one that calls for great strength of character always, and particularly now. It should be insensitive to all considerations except for which the Red Cross exists and individuals of ambiguous character, say an active party politician, with a genuine zeal for adventure and service, should restrain themselves to avoid even suspicious appearances.

No Red Cross worker should bring back reports on military matters. There are others who can attend to that. No Red Cross worker should report on the stated amount of equipment of the military forces, the purposes for which the organization exists will be best served in the field by persons who go out, not on mere temporary missions or tours, but by personnel who are undividedly occupied with Red Cross duties and for a long term, if not arbitrarily for the duration of the war.

It seems that only a nice, cool, quiet smoke will quiet that restless feeling which men who stop smoking have.

NOT JUST ANOTHER — The United War Fund campaign scheduled to open Friday this week throughout the United states is not just another drive for funds — it is an effort to give men and our allies that little our own fighting extra something which will win the war and the peace to follow.

Dunathan

Don't be complacent about this United War Fund drive. Don't accept it as a matter of course and give as little as you can. For the less you give, the less comforts and consolations can be provided for our men in service.

More than half of the total United War Fund proceeds will go the United Service Organization which maintains shelters, camps and entertainment features for our fighting men the world around. Where you find a soldier or a sailor you will find the USO—the serviceman's "home away from home."

Think for a moment of those letters you have received from your own son or brother or sweetheart in the fighting forces. He has mentioned the USO hasn't he? Perhaps the very letter he wrote was on stationery provided by the USO, and the letter was written in a USO center. Here in Escanaba we have a USO center which operates effectively. The serviceman stationed here, and those who come home on furlough or leave, visit the USO because they like the friendly atmosphere, the cordial welcome, the opportunity to meet their fellow fighting men and swap yarns.

* * *

BRINGING IT HOME—In an effort to bring the picture closer home to Delta county folk, Gerald Cleary, chairman of the county United War Fund committee, has directed attention to the fact that this county has 3,000 men in service.

The cost of providing USO comforts and entertainment for our fighting men is about $10 per man per year. Therefore, for our 3,000 county men with Uncle Sam, our total USO contribution should be about $30,000—which is exactly the county United War Fund quota.

So you see the quota is not out of reason. In fact it is just the other way. For besides providing funds to maintain the USO, the United War Fund will help 16 other war relief agencies, including Seamen's Service, War Prisoners Aid, and aid to the stricken women and children whose countries have been the victims of Axis aggression.

* * *

HELP US LOCALLY — Combined in the drive, and coming under the $30,000 quota for the county, are the finance drives of the Salvation Army, the Boy Scouts of America, the Campfire Girls, and the fund to provide cod liver oil to undernourished school children.

All of these are emminently worthwhile. The Salvation Army maintains, besides its local headquarters, a mobile canteen service which follows our fighting men wherever they may go. You will find these SA canteens a few miles behind the fighting fronts, ready with coffee and doughnuts, flapjacks and syrup. What this means in morale for our soldiers is easy to evaluate—it is a touch of home in alien and difficult surroundings. Besides this the Salvation Army thinks of the spiritual side, distributes bibles, holds church services.

Of the Boy Scouts of America there is little The Bugler could tell you that you do not already know. You know how it gives the boy outdoor training and experience, how so many former Scouts are now the officers, the heroes and the best of fighting men.

One thing perhaps has not been enoughed stressed in publicity for the forthcoming drive. By combining all of these appeals in one campaign and in one fund, the necessity for digging down every few weeks or months will be eliminated. All of these organizations included in the United War Fund are worthy, yet the time might come when, after a succession of individual campaigns, we would become weary and fail to contribute as we should.

Support the United War Fund drive — and save being touched frequently in a succession of campaigns.

* * *

LAUGHTER IN WAR—One of the big jobs of the USO—we're getting back to that agency because one half of the United War Fund will go to it—is to provide laughter and amusement for our men in the combat zones. To you, sitting comfortably reading this, it may sound silly. But put yourself in the place of that fighting man of yours. Each day he faces death, each hour is uncertainty and fear. A little laugh, a little amusement to make him forget—these are precious to him.

This laughter and amusement is provided by the USO camp shows. To date 6109 professional entertainers in 114 different USO camp shows have been sent overseas to entertain our fighting forces. It is one of the most unusual circuits in the history of the theater.

Among the "soldiers in greasepaint" sent overseas are many of the greater performers from the theater, the radio, the motion picture and the concert hall—stars such as Bob Hope, Al Jolson, Ray Bolger, Joe E. Lewis, Kay Francis, Carole Landis and many others.

These actors and actresses have gone by plane and troopship from New York ,from California to Greenland and the Gold Coast of Africa, to England and India, to Alaska and Iraq and Panama—and way stations.

These troupers feel they are not doing anything anybody else wouldn't do. It's not modesty—just cold realization after having been so close to the fighting fronts. Said Bob Hope returning from an overseas tour: "The men thanked us and wanted our autographs. It was silly. We should have thanked them and asked for theirs."

—Clint Dunathan.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington — Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, ousted commander of Pearl Harbor, is laying a hot potato on the step of Secretary of the Navy Knox and the President which will be hard to handle.

Pearson

Admiral Kimmel has drafted a letter to Secretary Knox demanding that he be allowed to take his case before a court-martial now. Previously Admiral Kimmel had agreed that the court-martial be postponed until after the end of the war and recently he waived expiration of the statute of limitations.

But now the Admiral has completely changed his position and put forward reasons which his friends in the Navy believe are sound and will be hard for Secretary Knox and the President to meet.

Further, it is reported that Admiral Kimmel has retained as his lawyer fighting, one-armed Col. Harry Leonard, the U. S. Marine officer who defended the late Gen. Smedley Butler in his court-martial row with Herbert Hoover and Mussolini. Gen. Butler, who fought side by side with Col. Leonard in the Boxer Rebellion, where the latter lost his arm, had told a lecture audience how Mussolini ran over a child and did not let his chauffeur stop the car.

Hoover ordered Butler court-martialled. But hard-boiled Col. Leonard handled the case with such skill that in the end the Navy let Leonard and Butler write out their own statement dropping the trial.

When the Navy's new Judge Advocate General Admiral Tommy Gatch, former commander of the U.S.S. South Dakota, heard that the one-armed Leonard had been retained by Admiral Kimmel, he remarked to friends: "We're in for a tough fight."

The letter drafted by Kimmel to Secretary Knox recalls that Knox had asked him on Aug. 27 not to plead the statute of limitations when his court-martial came up after the war; and that Kimmel had agreed.

Admiral Kimmel then reviewed his earlier acquiescence to the argument that it was not for the best interests of the country to press for trial until the end of the war, even though his own public vindication might be prejudiced and even though the public considered him guilty.

The Admiral added that his defense would necessarily be that "higher authority" shared in the tragic events, and he did not want to air these facts during the early stages of the war.

However, Kimmel continued, witnesses regarding the Pearl Harbor disaster and its responsibility are bound to die, in fact one has died already. Human memory may become obscure, he also pointed out, and this is one reason why the statute of limitations was enacted into law.

Furthermore, Kimmel argued, we are no longer losing the war. Therefore, he said he felt he could no longer bear the burden of obloquy alone without trial, "which I herewith request."

In preparation for the trial, Kimmel demanded that he and his attorney have access to the records of the Navy Department immediately in order to prepare his defense. He pointed out that these records might be lost or misplaced, and that he must have access to them.

Kimmel told Knox that he did not doubt his good faith in wanting to permit him a fair trial after the war, but on the other hand he was not so sure about the interestedness of the Secretary of the Navy who might follow Knox. Therefore, he demanded a trial now.

Kimmel also demanded that his letter to Knox be given the same publicity as the Navy Department's statement that Kimmel had waived the statute of limitations. Finally he told Knox that he would expect a reply.

This leaves the next move up to Knox and the White House. It will not be an easy decision for them to make.

Colorful, go-getting Andrew J. Higgins, the New Orleans boat-building wizard, usually bowls over everyone he meets, including his good friend, President Roosevelt.

However, it was the President who did the bowling over when Higgins called at the White House for a confidential chat on war shipping problems the other day.

Higgins presented the President with miniature models of a 36-foot troop landing boat, a 50-foot tank-carrying lighter and a 37-foot general "utility" patrol boat, which he has been building for the government.

"I thought you would like to have these for your collection, Mr. President," said Higgins.

"They're wonderful, Andy," said the President, as he examined each of the models carefully. "Perfect in all details." Then, with a quizzical glance at Higgins, he added:

"But how about that new P-T (torpedo patrol) boat you're turning out? I'm very anxious to get a model of that, also."

"We're making a model for you now," replied Higgins. "You'll have it within a month."

"That's fine," said Roosevelt. "You know, I've had occasion to look over the reports of the performance of your P-T boats in battle areas, and I still can't understand how they can make an in-board turn, considering how fast they travel."

(Note: "In-board turn" is the nautical equivalent of a "bank" on a level area, such as the sea. With an automobile, as with most boats, this is impossible when travelling at a fast speed. However, Higgins P-T boats are especially constructed to defy the law of centrifugal force, so that they can make a turn within two lengths at a speed of 50 miles an hour, without upsetting or throwing the crew overboard.)

The first regular meeting of the year of the Franklin Parent-Teacher association will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the school auditorium. The program will consist of old-fashioned movies and community singing under the direction of Whitney Dixon. Pupils of the Franklin school, accompanied by their parents, are cordially invited to attend with members and friends of the unit.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hanson, of 712 First avenue south, are the parents of a daughter, weighing six and one-half pounds, born Saturday, October 9, at Alvina Buchholtz Maternity Home.

A son, weighing six pounds, was born to Pvt. and Mrs. Donald Nault at Alvina Buchholtz Maternity Home on Sunday, October 10. Mrs. Nault resides at 214 North 18th street, and Pvt. Nault is stationed at Fort McLellan, Ala.

Washington Cubs Meet On Wednesday

The Washington school Cub pack No. 16, sponsored by the P. T. A., will hold its reorganization meeting Wednesday night, October 13, at the Washington school.

Under the guidance of Cubmaster Marshall Ashland, the pack has shown a remarkable improvement in cubbing during the past year. This year's program outlined by the cubmaster will include all parents of cubs.

Cubmaster Ashland declared that the new curfew ordinance puts more responsibility upon parents and urged that parents cooperate in the cubbing program by attending the monthly meetings and by assisting in the promotion of the program.

MANY ATTEND MEA

Marquette— Although wartime travel restrictions reduced attendance materially, hundreds of teachers came here for the two-day regional convention of the Michigan Educational association, which opened yesterday afternoon in the Northern College of Education, and registration lists last night showed that all except a few Upper Peninsula communities are represented.

No accurate count of the number of teachers registered was available last night, but regional MEA officers estimated it would exceed 1,000.

At Fort McLellan — Pvt. Paul Buchholtz, who entered service last month, is now stationed at Fort McLellan, Ala., in the U. S. Infantry, it has been learned. He is the third son of Mrs. Mary Bucholtz, 508 South 13th street, in service. Staff Sgt. Kenneth Buchholtz is an aerial gunner on a B-24 Liberator and is stationed at Pocatella, Idaho, and Cpl. Wm. Buchholtz is stationed at Fort George Meade, Md.

Arrives in India—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chouinard of Riverview have been advised that their son, Pvt. Clifford Chouinard, has reached his new assignment in India safely. He had not been heard from for eight weeks.

Picture of Jap Flag—Cpl. Wm. Slaga, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Slaga, of Perronville, who has been in service in New Guinea for 15 months, has sent his parents a picture of himself and his "buddies" holding a Japanese flag which they had taken in a conflict. Cpl. Slaga is now in a rest camp in Australia.

At Farragut—Lyle James SanGraw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse SanGraw, 311 N. 4th St., Manistique, Michigan, has begun his recruit training at this U. S. Naval Training Station, the largest in the West.

For the next several weeks he will be busy learning military discipline, the fundamentals of seamanship, and undergoing intensive physical hardening. Upon graduation from recruit training, he will be given an opportunity to qualify for enrollment in one of the many Navy Service Schools for specialized training, or will report immediately for duty with the U. S. fleet for action against our enemies.

At Great Lakes—New recruits at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., are five Delta County, Michigan men.

They are now receiving instruction in seamanship, military drill, and naval procedure. Soon, they will be given a series of aptitude tests for determining whether they will be assigned to one of the Navy's service schools, or to immediate active duty at sea.

Upon completing their recruit training, these men will be home on a nine-day leave. They are: Louis Pokladowski, 19, son of Mrs. Sophie T. Pokladowski, Rural Route, Bark River; Stanley R. Hoffman, 23, husband of Lucille M. Hoffman, 516 S. 14th St., Escanaba; Roy A. Christensen, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Christensen, 321 S. Twelfth, Escanaba; DeGrand J. DeGrand, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. DeGrand, 2100 7th Ave. S., Escanaba; and Harold Greene, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Greene, Garden.

Tin Can Salvage Drive Scheduled For Next Month

A city-wide pick-up of tin cans will be made during the week of Armistice Day, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. John Luecke, chairman. The Home Salvage committee states that 15 tons are on hand but shipment cannot be made in less than carload lots and a carload consists of 20 tons or more.

Everyone is urged to save tin cans and have them prepared by flattening them in time for the November pick-up. Tin and steel of which the cans are made are two important metals much needed in this war.

Fifty Campfire Girls are planning a house-to-house canvass for waste fats. Fat is necessary for making the much needed glycerine for explosives.

Anyone contributing waste fat to the Campfire Girls not only is helping the war effort but is helping the organization as well.

Further information may be obtained by calling any Campfire Girl in the neighborhood, or the Junior high school, 2123.

The question: "What do you think about the suggestion for a national lottery in the United States?"

The answers:

T. Sgt. George Lawrence, on furlough from the Lincoln Air Base, Nebraska: "It sounds fine to me. I believe the people would get a big bang out of it. The government would get a lot of needed revenue, too. I was in Panama when the government was promoting a lottery there and the people bought the tickets like mad. It was a lot of fun."

Sgt. Lawrence Jim La Vesser

Jim La Vesser, 1217 Seventh avenue south: "It's a great idea. Uncle Sam would get a lot of shekels from a lottery. Everybody likes to take a flier on a long chance. The government might as well reap a harvest this easy way. Sure, let's have it. Everyone knows that lotteries are being held with most of the money coming directly from this country. Why not have one of our own?"

Irene Anderson, 409 S. Seventh street: "The lottery conducted by the federal government would be honest, without the racketeering that characterizes so many lotteries now operated in this country illegally. The people like to gamble and the government may as well recognize it and divert the money to needed channels."

Irene Anderson Paul Wohlen

Paul Wohlen, 508 South Eighth street: "Well, I know that I, for one, would always buy a couple tickets in a lottery conducted by the federal government. It would be a lot of fun and the people would respect it. I believe, because it would be honest. Everybody likes to take a chance on a thing like this. Certainly Uncle Sam needs the money."

Best Method of Potato Storage Outlined by WFA

As an aid to buyers of potatoes in the current campaign by the federal government and retail food dealers to encourage home storage of potatoes, the War Food Administration recommends four simple rules for storage.

The suggestion by the federal agency appear on a poster which will be on display in retail food stores in Chicago and in cooperating retail stores throughout Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. The poster makes these recommendaktions:

1. Store only mature, sound, dry potatoes.
2. Store in cool, dry dark place (temperature 40 to 60 degrees).
3. Store in slatted crates, or bins—raised from floor to provide ventilation.
4. Inspect occasionally for keeping qualities and sort potatoes regularly.

Persons who plan to store potatoes during the coming winter will find such storage practical and convenient, with minimum losses, if these four suggestions are adherred to. The potatoes should be stored in a dark place in order to preserve flavor and should at all times be well covered to protect potatoes from direct light,, WFA officials stated.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our mother, Vera E. Scott, who passed away October 12th, 1940.

MOTHER

Hands ever eager for deeds that were kind,
Ready to help, heal or to bind.
Feet never tiring by night or day
Of helping your loved ones over lifes' way.
Eyes in whose depths always lingered a smile,
Seeing through love only good things worthwhile,
Heart always ready to comfort others,
All these were yours, dearest of mothers.
Surely around you angels must hover,
And though we try to carry on,
All the good you taught us, though you're gone,
We miss you so, Dear Mother.

Lovingly remembered by:
Irene, Eleanor and Millard Scot.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

TRAVEL NOTE: Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Britain's newly-appointed First Sea Lord and Chief of the Naval Staff, is a shy, quiet man. One year ago, when he visited here, the Admiral was the principal guest at a small luncheon in Washington. The soft-spoken seaman told us then of his plan for combating the submarine menace. And his face was tragic when he discussed Britain's losses . . . But his face must have been brighter on the eve of the invasion of Sicily—for it was Admiral Cunningham who was selected to choose the code-word for beginning the attack against Europe. The word he chose was "Retribution."

MUSIC DEPT.: When Henry Ford was undecided about changing the radio program he sponsors—from a program of news-commentating to one of music—a number of audition-recordings, were submitted to him. One of these was by Paul Whiteman's orchestra . . . Ford ruled against a music program, and continued the news series, because when he played the Whiteman recordings, he found that he was unable to beat time with his foot.

ART DEPT.: Lt. Col. Serge Obolensky, the Russian prince who once was Vincent Astor's brother-in-law, was mentioned in recent dispatches as the hero who parachuted over Sardinia, and brought Eisenhower's message to the Italian commandant . . . Col. Obolensky was a Czarist officer in the last war. At that time one of Russia's noted artists had Obolensky pose for him, "because you typify an aristocracy which fast is disappearing." That painting now is in Obolensky's home in New York. It has two bullet-holes in it. For during the Revolution, it had been displayed on a Petrograd wall, under a sign reading, "Wanted, Dead Or Alive."

BEAUTY DEPT.: Carl Brisson told Maxie Rosenbloom of the offer made to him last week, to appear in the new movie version of "The Hairy Ape." . . . "That's a coincidence," said Rosenbloom, "because my agent said I was up for that role." . . . "In my case, it'll be different," said Brisson. "You see, Maxie, they want me to play it with make-up."

THEATRE DEPT.: Five years ago Mary Martin made her stage debut, with Victor Moore and William Gaxton, in "Leave It to Me," at the Imperial Theatre. The next day's front pages recorded her triumph in singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" . . . Last night Miss Martin returned to Broadway, at the same theatre, in her second show—this time as a star, in "One Touch of Venus" . . . "Am I going to have the same dressing room?" she asked the producers, who told her: "No. You're going to have the star's dressing room" . . . "Which one?" asked Mary, "Gaxton's or Moores? . . . "We've torn down the walls," she learned. "You'll have both dressing rooms."

POLITICS: The powerful Democratic mayor of a Western city has been guilty of a number of objectionable, dictatorial acts. One of the leading citizens in the community approached the President, and suggested that he issue a statement denouncing the Mayor . . . "If he were to run again, tomorrow," asked Roosevelt, "what do you think the people would do?" . . . "They'd re-elect him," was the frank answer . . . "In that case," said the President, "the proper thing to do is to start educating the people of your city."

FASHIONS DEPT.: Elaine Bassett, of "Early to Bed," modelled in the Lange fashion-show at the Ritz the other day. She portrayed DuBarry, and wore a $150,000 necklace from Cartier's . . . Miss Bassett was flattered to notice that five well-dressed, distinguished looking gentlemen at a ringside table were eyeing her throughout the show . . . "I think those fivev men are going to do a lot of buying," she told Lange—who disillusioned her by revealing: "They're Cartier's detectives."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Sam Goldwyn discussed with a visitor the business of making pictures. "Yes, I'm lucky. I've been successful so far," said Goldwyn . . . "It isn't just luck," said the visitor. "Now take Shaw. George Bernard Shaw once said he owned his success to the fact that he outlived his contemporaries" . . . "But that doesn't go in Hollywood," said Goldwyn. "The trouble with my contemporaries out here is that they're tough."

FINANCE DEPT.: Swifty Morgan, the sportsman, world-traveller and legendary character, was in Reuben's plying his current trade—that of tie-salesman. Morgan's background is somewhat mysterious. One of his friends, in trying to learn part of Swifty's history, made the wild suggestion: "I hear, Swifty, that you're the brother of the head of the Radio Corporation of America" . . . "If my brother were head of the Radio Corporation of America, would I be selling ties in Reuben's?" was Swifty's logical answer. "No, I'd be selling ties at Radio City."

SOCIAL NOTE: Walter Wanger, the Hollywood producer, received an old friend at his office and opened a box of cigars for him. "Here," Wanger invited, "have a Churchill cigar" . . . MOVIES: Dr. Morris Fishbein, head of the American Medical Association, went to Radio City Music Hall last week. The movie hall was crowded, and he went down one of the aisles, searching for an empty seat . . . "Follow me to aisle 7," an usher whispered to him. "There ain't no seats here" . . . Dr. Fishbein ignored the request, and continued his hunt for a seat . . . "There ain't no seats here, so follow me to aisle 7," the usher repeated. Dr. Fishbein again ignored the request . . . "Didn't you hear me?" asked the usher. "There ain't no seats here. Follow me to Aisle 7" . . . "I'll follow you to Aisle 7," said Dr. Fishbein, "but not ungrammatically."

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

Editor's Note: This is one of a number of Ernie Pyle columns from past years that are being reprinted during Ernie's vacation. He wrote this one in 1937.

Toledo, O.—In Toledo there is very queer restaurant. I had heard about it before I got there, and thought it would make a good column.

Pyle

So I went around there with some fellows for lunch, intending to look the place over quietly and then maybe have a chat with the manager about it afterward.

The restaurant is a big place, and there must have been 150 men and women eating lunch when we went in. There were quite a few in our party, so the waiter put two tables together in the middle of the room and we sat down.

A waiter with pad and pencil came up to take our orders. He said to me, "What'll you have?" I didn't say anything for a couple of seconds of course, and then suddenly the waiter turned toward the kitchen and yelled so loud you could hear him all over the place:

"Hey, this rube won't order. Come here."

So waiters all over the place threw down their dishes and came running, and those apes grabbed me fore and aft and on each side and underneath, and jerked me away from the table and dragged me clear across the restaurant, and kicked open the front doors and whisshhh—there I was right on the sidewalk, thrown out of the place!

* * *

Well, that's the way things go in that restaurant all the time. It's a madhouse. Something's always happening. The whole business (and a very prosperous business it is) has been built up on the policy of insulting the customers.

The waiters all wear galluses and keep their hats on and talk all the time If you're geting bald they call you "curly." If you're completely bald, they come along and polish your head with a rag. If you spill anything, they'll bring a big baby-bib and tie it around your neck.

When they set the table they just bring an armload of silver and throw it at you. If you eat left-handed, as I do, a waiter will stop dead in his tracks and point at you and yell to the whole house, "Hey, look at this rube, he don't even know which hand to eat with. Haw! Haw! Haw!"

The head man said to me, "A new customer always gets rolls and a cup on his first visit here." And just then a waiter came running and yelling, "Rolls and a cup for the new customer." He had an empty cup and two rolls of toilet paper on a plate. Everybody laughed, including me, although I didn't see anything funny about it.

During our soup course the waiter came around and said solicitously: "Is there enough water in that soup, or would you like me to put my thumb in it?"

Once in a while a waiter got up and walked on the tables. And from the kitchen there was a constant bedlam of dishes breaking, pots falling, women screaming, bells and whistles going off, moans, shouts and thumpings.

All during the meal a waiter kept going around the restaurant like a newsboy, yelling "Here ya are—News-Bee, World-Telegram, Daily News—read Ernie Pyle's column—read all about it!" He was holding high in the air a big roll of toilet paper.

When he started to leave, I could hardly lift my topcoat from the rack, it was so heavy. Waiters came running from everywhere. They felt in the pockets and yelled, "We've caught a thief! We've caught a thief!"

And then they started unloading the pockets. They took out enough knives and forks to set up the whole restaurant. They took out salt and pepper shakers, and jars of sugar, and bottles of ketchup. I didn't know my pockets would hold so much. And all the time yelling "Boy, did he try to make a getaway!" Everybody in the place was howling.

By that time I decided aw to hell with it, I might as well get in the spirit of the thing too, so when they were all finished I picked up a handful of knives and forks and put them back in my pocket and at the counter I took three cigars and two chocolate bars and walked on out the front door. Haw! Haw! Haw!

* * *

The place is known as Bud & Luke's. It is run by two brothers named Eugene and Glenn Fowler. They have two big restaurants in Toledo now, and do a whale of a business.

They started it 11 years ago. They were auto salesmen then, not doing very well, and decided to open a little restaurant business on the side.

They were so busy they couldn't do a decent job of waiting on people, and had to cover up their poor service with a little kidding. The kidding seemed to take hold, and now it has grown into this colossal buffoonery.

People are always saying to Bud or Luke, "Say, I know a fellow who would be a wow as a waiter." But these wows, when they're hired, never seem to turn out. It works better just to hire some casual applicant; in a couple of weeks he's into the swing of the thing and turns out crazier than anybody.

The chief waiter is a genuine quick-thinking, ad-libbing wit named Charlie Shook, and he gets $75 a week.

I asked Bud (or maybe it was Luke) if anybody ever really got sore. He said yes, once in a while. They always try to smooth things over, but if the guy doesn't warm up, then they really let him have it. Nobody has even got sore enough to fight, however. More people get sore because they come for a ribbing and don't get it, than the other way around.

They only throw a customer out in the street about once a week. These throw-outs are generally arranged ahead of time (as mine was, I learned later. I think the funniest one was about two years ago when a couple of boys from The News-Bee called up and arranged to have an out-of-town guest thrown out. The waiters got mixed up and threw out one of the arrangers.

Three Injured In Freak Car Wreck

Three Thompson residents suffered minor injuries Sunday when the car in which they were riding crashed into a concrete culvert.

Treated for cuts and bruises in Manistique were Zita Schneider, 20, Helen Hursh, 17, and John Herro, 13, all of Thompson.

The accident occurred when Kathleen Herro, 15, of Thompson, started the family car in front of the Herro store in Thompson and attempted to make a U turn. The machine accelerated and went out of control, going into the ditch on the opposite side of the road. Seven persons were in the car at the time.

NO ACTION ON LEVEL OF LAKE

County Is Broke, But Will Investigate Dam, Say Supervisors

Schoolcraft county board of supervisors refused to intimidate the taxpayers of the county by asking for court action to control the water level of Indian Lake, at the afternoon session Monday of their annual meeting.

The board voted to table a petition presented to them by riparian owners on Indian Lake in which they asked for a resolution which would result in the level of the lake being set by court action. A three man committee was named to investigate the matter further.

It was the concensus of opinion among the supervisors that if the courts were called to intercede in this matter that it would revert back to Schoolcraft county to build and maintain a dam on the river. Schoolcraft county is "in the red financially" according to William W. Davidson, chairman of the board.

R. P. Hudson, Sault Ste. Marie attorney, addressed the board on behalf of the riparian owners, stating that the lake level fluctuates more than four feet in a single season; that property on the shores are being damaged during spring flooding; and that a system of water level control should be established. He pointed out that Indian Lake has developed into one of the greatest resorts in the state and that Manistique benefits financially from the lake up to $400,000 a year in normal times. If the lake is allowed to deteriorate, a great source of income will be lost, he declared, and a fine natural lake will be destroyed. He urged that the supervisors authorize Prosecutor William Sheahan to file a resolution in circuit court asking for the establishment of a definite water level.

In the discussion that followed the supervisors decided that the possibility of Schoolcraft county building a dam, which may cost $40,000, was out of the question. They felt that the Manistique Pulp and Paper company should take the responsibility. A phone call to R. G. Hentschell, however, disclosed that the company is not materially interested in the project inasmuch as they do not use the water. Mr. Hentschell was quoted as saying he would confer with his board of directors in the matter.

Many of the supervisors felt that the issue was one for the state conservation department, inasmuch as the lake used by the public for fishing, swimming and general resorting. It was the belief of Mr. Hudson that the department would undoubtedly cooperate wholeheartedly in the matter, as they have already done, but that the department possibly would not be able to shoulder the full amount of the expense.

Prosecutor Sheahan suggested that a committee investigate to ascertain: 1. If the Pulp and Paper company will build the dam, or, 2. If they won't, will they deed over the land at the old dam site so that some other organization can build it. Findings of the committee will be reported at a future meeting.

Discussion of the Indian Lake level consumed most of Monday afternoon, with views expressed by several private citizens and riparian land owners at the lake.

Dr. Asher of the county health unit here, appeared at the meeting to ask that the county appropriation again be $1,276 as it was last year. He was deluged with questions from several supervisors relative to policies of his department.

Appropriations of $100 for the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and $150 for the U. P. Potato Show this month were approved by the supervisors.

All supervisors were present for Monday's sessions.

Members of the county road commission appeared to present an up to date summary of work and expenses on all county roads, and a financial report showing $54,133.83 on hand October 1, 1943.

Expect A Large Local Delgation At Blaney

A large delegation of local business men is expected to attend the postwar planning conference at Blaney Park this week.

Most of the members of the city planning commission will undoubtedly attend the Friday sessions, city officials said yesterday. All members of the planning commission, recently appointed, have officially accepted their appointments, it was said. In addition, a delegation from the Chamber of Commerce is expected to attend. City Manager Charles Manson has agreed to assist George Bishop, manager of the U. P. Development Bureau, in operating various phases of the convention, including the organization of various forum groups etc. J. Joseph Herbert will address the afternoon session Thursday, and will act in the capacity of toastmaster at the Friday evening banquet. At the same meeting words of welcome will be offered by Charles D. Manson on behalf of Schoolcraft county as the host to the conference.

Friday will undoubtedly be the 'big day" of the conference with large numbers of upper peninsula civic leaders in attendance. Two important forum meetings are scheduled for Friday including the Upper Michigan Postwar Planning Clinic with John P. Norton, Escanaba, ex-President of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, presiding. J. G. Wells, Chatham, supervisor of county agents, will preside at an agricultural meeting.

On Saturday morning R. V. Gay, director of the Michigan Planning Commission and Herbert Olson, director of the Michigan Municipal League, will be featured speakers at a planning meeting. The session will be devoted to public works and the "How and What of Planning."

Schoolcraft county board of supervisors voted to attend in a body the postwar planning conference at Blaney Friday afternoon and evening this week. The motion was made at the opening session of the Supervisor's annual meeting Monday morning.

Home Ec. Extension Groups Will Start Work In November

The Home Economics Extension groups of Schoolcraft county will begin their work on November 10-11, J. L. Heirman reports.

Home-makers are fighting the war on the home front and the program for the extension groups has been planned with this in mind. Feeding the family, keeping it well clothed and comfortable, making equipment and utensils last until more are available, and keeping the home an attractive place for the family to work and to rest are all jobs of utmost importance during these war years. The titles of the four discussions chosen by the Schoolcraft county groups this year are New Tricks for Old Clothes, Wartime Point Saving Meals, Remodeled furniture in Step with the War, and We Can Keep Our House in Repair.

This program is a part of the work of the Extension Service of Michigan State College. Any woman in the county interested in belonging to a group should notify J. L. Heirman, county agent.

OPA GIVES AID TO MEAT MKTS

Volunteers Are Calling On Merchants To Help Them Comply

Retail meat dealers in Manistique are receiving visits this week from volunteer assistants of local OPA price panels, in a move to help store comply with pricing and posting regulations, the OPA announces.

Price volunteers are making a survey of meat stores with the aim of helping merchants not only to comply with regulations, but to discover what problems are preventing general compliance. An important requirement is that top legal prices for meats be posted where buyers can read them. OPA provides dealers with posters showing official prices for different grades and cuts of meat. Dealers who are registered with the local War Price and Rationing office will receive a new poster this week. Others may call the board for copies. In many small stores, dealers have appeared to have some difficulty in displaying these posters properly.

OPA points out that the problem of the dealer who says he is forced to pay, and charge illegal prices in order to obtain meat for his customers, is an important one. It is the duty of price volunteers to obtain facts about this problem from the dealer and to report them to the price panel which in turn reports findings to the district office. OPA seeks to determine where primary responsibility for such evasion rests, and to act accordingly.

The survey is expected to be completed this week. A marked increase in compliance with meat regulations is expected as a result of the survey.

HELP NEEDED ON RC SEWING

Quota Of Garments And Hospital Supplies Is Large

The turnout of women for Red Cross sewing since its resumption a week or more ago has been very disappointing, it was stated yesterday by Mrs. M. J. Neveaux, chairman in charge.

There is a considerable amount of articles including bath robes, pneumonia jackets and other hospital supplies to be made and large turnouts are necessary if the local quota is to be fulfilled.

Next week the sewing will be on the afternoons of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. In charge the four afternoons will be Mrs. Milton Damitz, Mrs. Torval Kallerson, Mrs. A. D. Harris and Mrs. L. J. Weingartner, respectively.

Lt. DeKeyser Was Lost In Roumanian Oil Refinery Rid

Lt. Harold DeKeyser, U. S. Army Air Corps, who was killed in action July 13, 1943, lost his life in a raid on Rumanian oil refineries, it is indicated in a letter sent to Mrs. William DeKeyser, 1408 Michigan avenue, mother of the youth, by John B. Cooley, Colonel, A. G. D., Acting Air Adjutant General, Washington, D. C. The letter:

"Dear Mrs. DeKeyser:

"The news of the highly successful raid made by our bombers on the Roumanian oil fields thrilled the people of our country, but brought great sadness to those families whose loved ones were reported as killed or missing.

"To the men who returned from the raid General Arnold has sent the attached letter which expresses the pride of the Army Air Forces in their accomplishment and, it is believed, reflects the admiration of the United Nations for duty well performed.

"To the homes of those who were less fortunate, the same letter is being sent, in order that you may share our great pride in this daring exploit."

The letter sent by H. H. Arnold, Commanding General, Army Air Forces, to officers and men of the combat wing of the air force to which Lt. DeKeyser was attached, follows:

"I have listened with greatest interest to the stirring accounts brought back to me of the details of the attack on the Roumanian oil refineries by heavy bombers of the Eighth and Ninth U. S. Air Forces. The destruction of these oil wells will be far reaching in its effect upon the German ability to carry on their operations. In fact, it might well be the 'straw that broke the camel's back' and cause the dislocation of the German war effort. The dogged determination to reach and destroy each of those vital installations; and an utter disregard for personal safety, characterized the action of officers and men of your striking force and evokes my profound admiration.

"The heroic accomplishments of the combat crews, and the splendid efforts of the members of the ground echelons who made the mission possible, are all deserving of the highest praise.

"You were assigned the tremendous task of destroying in one day a target that could have been reached by surface forces only after many months of combat involving great losses both of men and materiel, and you carried your attack home in spite of the strongest kind of opposition built up by the axis forces. Some of your comrades fell in the attack—others are now held as prisoners of war. Those of you who return to fight again must realize, as I do, that those who gave their lives did so that others might live. The officers and men of the U. S. Army Air Forces all over the world take pride in your achievement."

Mrs. Gust Olson, 66, Dies at Hospital

Mrs. Emma Andrietta Olson, 66, North Fifteenth street, wife of Gust Olson, and a pioneer resident of the Gladstone community, died at 7:15 o'clock Sunday night at St. Francis hospital. She had been ill for the past year.

She was born in Sundsvall, Sweden, August 15, 1877, and came directly to Gladstone from Sweden. She was a member of the First Lutheran church, of the Kronan Lodge and of the Lady Maccabees.

Surviving are her husband, two daughters and three sons, Mrs. Everett Rosenlund of Gladstone, Route One; Mrs. Gordon Miron, of Munising; Carl of Gladstone; Alvin of Iron Mountain; and Lloyd of Detroit; eighteen grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Hilma Johnson of Gladstone; and two brothers, John Froberg, of Rhinelander, Wis.; and Theodore Froberg, of Gladstone.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home to be prepared for burial and will be removed to the family home at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Services will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Clifford Peterson conducting the rites. Burial will be in Fernwood cemetery.

Arrest Youths For Entering Cottage

Two Gladstone youths, both minors, were taken into custody Sunday for the breaking and entering of a cottage near Schaawe Lake.

The boys, one 15, the other 16, were arrested by state police of the Gladstone post, who found them walking on the highway on the Stonington peninsula.

Some foodstuffs and pans were taken from the cottage.

The cases were turned over to the probate court for disposition.

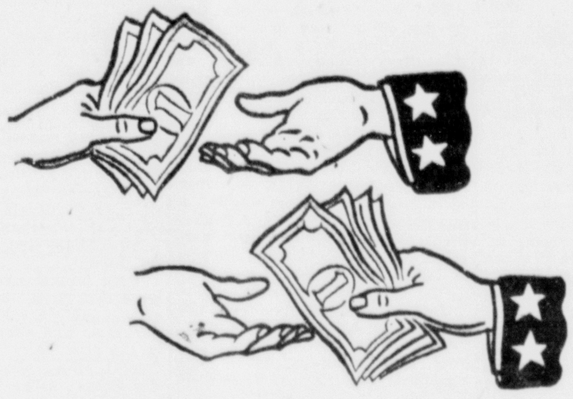
In early times the island of Stromboli in the Mediterranean was believed the home of Aeolus, god of the winds.

Here's one thing your Uncle Sam wants you to hoard!

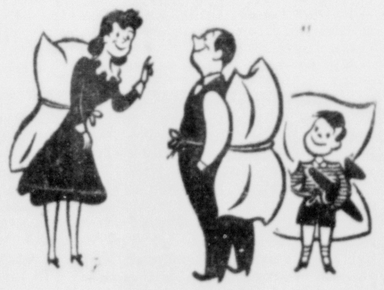
YOUR FAVORITE UNCLE wants you to pamper your money. He wants you to put it aside in War Bonds—all of it you can—it will come in mighty handy later on. In fact, he is so anxious for you to do this he will give you $4 for every $3 you lay aside!



1. We must equip and arm the greatest army of all time if we are to win the war. The more War Bonds you buy the better we can do that.

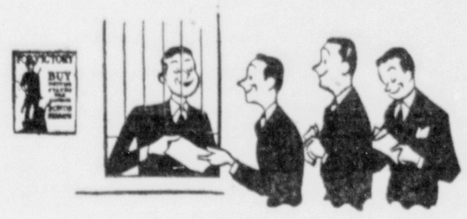
2. We must not let prices get out of hand. Peacetime things are scarce. By putting your money into War Bonds instead of spending it for the scarce things you will help keep the cost of living down.

3. Uncle Sam wants you to have a "cushion" when the war is over—a reserve of money that will help you during the readjustment to peace. By buying War Bonds you'll be putting aside money for that period of readiustment.



Your Uncle Sam is pretty sure that you've bought some War Bonds—there isn't a patriotic American who hasn't bought some. But he wants to make certain that you are buying enough.

Twenty million American workers have joined the Pay-Roll Plan. They are putting 265 million dollars into War Bonds every month by having their employer deduct it from their pay checks.



Lots of these people are investing at least 10 percent of their pay in War Bonds. Some of them more.

War Bonds make such good sense—for patriotic and selfish reasons—that nobody should skimp on them. Nobody should be putting less than 10 percent into War Bonds unless it is literally impossible to do so.

See your employer today and tell him you want not 6 percent, or 7 percent or 8 percent, but a full 10 percent put into War Bonds every pay day—and more, if you can see your way clear!

WHAT YOU SHOULD DO

If you are—

1. Already setting aside 10 percent of your pay into War Bonds through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan—boost that 10 percent if you can.
2. Working in a plant where the Plan is installed but haven't signed up yet—sign up tomorrow.
3. Working in a plant where the Pay-Roll Savings Plan hasn't been installed, talk to your union head, foreman, or plant manager—and see if it can't be installed right away. The local bank will be glad to help.
4. Unable to get in on the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for any reason, go to your local bank or other issuing agent. They will be glad to help you start a Plan of your own.

Bronx Bombers Bag 10th Series Title, Nip Cards In Finale, 2-0

TWO VETERANS IN FOR WINDUP

Catcher Dickey Decides Skirmish In Sixth With 2-Run Homer

BY JUDSON BAILEY

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 11 (AP)—The New York Yankees re-established their supremacy in baseball today by conquering the desperately struggling St. Louis Cardinals 2 to 0 before 33,872 fans for their fourth victory in five games of the 1943 World Series.

It was the tenth world championship for the deadly bombers from the Bronx and the clincher was delivered by two of the veterans who have shared in the spoils of many of those previous triumphs—Pitcher Spud Chandler and Catcher Bill Dickey.

The 36-year-old Dickey, one of the greatest backstops in the history of the game, decided the final skirmish in the sixth inning with a two-run homer that landed on the roof of the right field pavilion, 325 feet from the plate.

Kept In Trouble

It was a mighty blow to climax the lustrous career of Dickey, who has been on nine Yankee squads in the World Series starting as a rookie in 1928 and it helped Chandler, the 34-year-old Dean of New York's mound staff, to his second success of the series.

Without this hefty home run the last contest of the classic might easily have gone either way in spite of the shutout pitching of the Georgia right-hander, for Chandler was pelted for ten hits and was kept in almost constant trouble by the Cardinals.

At the start of the duel it was big Mort Cooper, ace of the Cards, who appeared invincible as he struck out the first five batters he faced and he was going strong in seach of a repeat victory over the Yanks right up until the time Dickey punched the winning ticket.

Keller Bobbles Single

He had retired the first two batters in the top half of the sixth when Charley (King Kong) Keller, an example in futility during most of the series, topped a ball that rolled into right field for a single.

On the next pitch Dickey hammered out his homer and that was the ball game, although there were other trimmings for the fans, whose presence brought a new attendance record of 277,312 for a 5-game series.

Altogether the Yankees made just seven hits and Dickey's clout was only his fifth of the series, but it was his fourth with men on bases and the third which drove in runs.

The Cardinals used every effort Manager Billy Southworth could conceive to stave off defeat. They made two changes in their outfield, subbing Johnny Hopp and Debs Garms for Harry Walker and Danny Litwhiler, and they tried to stir up their old baserunning style of speed and thunder.

Can't Get Counters

They succeeded in making a gripping ball game of the final tussle in place of their docile performance Sunday but it was no use.

In the first inning they got two runners on base with one out on an infield single, a sacrifice and a walk, but they couldn't break through.

In the second inning they put two on with none out as Ray Sanders singled and ranged into shortstop Frank Crosetti to make him drop the ball on a double play attempt on Hopp's bouncer, but again it was to no avail.

Walker Cooper singled with two out in the third and was thrown out trying to make it a double.

A single and walk gave the Redbirds two runners with none out in the fourth and they came up with one hit in the sixth and seventh stanzas and two each in the eighth and ninth. Yet for all the good it did them they might just as well have been held hitless, for Chandler managed to tighten down and suppress every threat.

The Yankees also made several gestures at Cooper and his successors on the mound, Lefty Max Lanier and Murry Dickson, the right-hander who was given leave from the Army for the series after he had been supposed to enter military service a week before the series started.

Walker Hurts Finger

Following Cooper's spectacular feat of striking out the first five New York batters, coming within one of the series record, he walked Nick Etten on four straight pitches and a bad throw by Catcher Walker Cooper trying to catch the runner off first let him reach second.

Joe Gordon grounded out to end this business but the Yankees were right back in the next frame pressing for a run. With two out Crosetti and Bud Metheny hit successive singles and Crosetti reached third before Bill Johnson popped up.

In the fifth Tuck Stainback singled with one out, was sacrificed to second and raced to third on a wild pitch, but Crosetti raised a helpless fly.

Crosetti fouled off numerous pitches before going out, however, and one of these tips struck Catcher Walker Cooper on the index finger of his right hand causing a compound dislocation that forced him out of the game. He kicked his mit along the ground in front of him in disgust as he trudged toward the dugout.

As it turned out, however, the injury to their regular catcher did not hurt the Cardinals at bat and came through with a sparkling fielding play in which he caught Chandler's pop foul with two on and one out in the ninth.

Saved By Double Play

After giving up the winning runs in the sixth, Cooper pitched the seventh, putting on a runner with a walk, before being removed for a pinch batter in the last half of the inning.

Lanier, who had been beaten by Chandler in the series opener, at New York last Tuesday, and who had returned for a starting assignment yesterday without sucness, came to the mound again at the beginning of the eighth inning, struck out the first batter, gave a single to Johnson and a walk to Keller, and then was saved by a double play.

In the ninth he was tapped for a single by Nick Etten and a walk by Gordon with none out. After Stainback had bunted into a force play attempting to sacrifice, Lanier was relieved by Dickson, who got Chandler on his pop foul, but issued a wali to Crosetti to load the bases before Metheny grounded out to end the inning.

The victory enabled the Yankees to catch a train back to New York, just as they had hoped, by winning three straight games since their one loss to Mort Cooper in the second game at New York.

It also meant that each player received the long end of the players' share in the series pool amounting to $6,123.20 for each member of the winning squad. The Cardinals' players shares were worth $4,321.99 each.

P. P. FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The Michigan High School Athletic Association prohibits postseason prep football games in this state, so the quarrel over the mythical upper peninsula championship bobs up nearly every year and lingers well into the basketball season. The argument seldom is ever settled, but gradually flickers out as interest turns to new endeavors.

The point is that football is the only sport promoted in upper Michigan schools in which some effort is not made to determine the peninsula championship. The state conducts championship basketball tournaments, tennis championships, cross-country, golf, and track and field championships. Even debating and other forms of competitive public speaking point toward a peninsula championship.

Why not an upper peninsula football championship duly sanctioned and recognized by the state athletic association? The tournament idea is impractical in football, of course, but the mechanics of the thing could be worked out something along the lines of the Rose Bowl game. Either the schools sponsoring football or the upper peninsula athletic committee could designate the teams for the championship game, basing their decision upon the season records. Such a game, of course, should be played on a neutral gridiron, probably the Northern Michigtn College gridiron at Marquette. Arrangements for the game could be handled by the U. P. athletic committee, including the selection of officials, etc.

Permit Nine Games

The state athletic association permits nine football games for any high school team, although only eight is recommended. Most upper peninsula schools play a seven or eight game schedule. With the exception of Menominee all upper peninsula teams finish their schedule the last week in October or the first week in November.

It has long been a mystery to me why so much fuss is made against any proposal suggesting a post season football game and why so much evil is imagined on postseason football. The basketball tournaments are postseason, no less, and the state association thinks they are grand. So do I, for that matter.

To get back where wo started from, it is true that there is a state association ban on a postseason football games but rules are made by Man—and Man can change them.

This brings up another thought. Eligibility for selection in a postseason championship game obviously would require a definite number of regular sceason games with upper Michigan schools. Some schools, because of their geographical location, Ironwood, particularly, oftimes have found it difficult to schedule a representative upper Michigan schedule. The U. P. athletic committee in such cases should put their weight of their organization behind these schools to assist them in flying a representative schedule.

Well, what about it?

TWELVE SERIES RECORDS FALL

Seven Other Marks Tied As Yanks Wrap Up 194 3 Crown

St. Louis, Oct. 11 (AP)—Twelve World series records of one kind or the other were broken and seven others were tied as the New York Yankees wrapped up their tenth world championship today by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals four games to one.

Seven of the new records fell to the Yankees as the fall classic drew a new high of 277,312 fans for a five-game series, established a new attendance mark for one game of 69,990 at the Yankee Stadium last Thursday and paid off $488,005.74 to the players of both clubs for another first.

Gordon Tops List

Joe Gordon, the Yankees' veteran second baseman, was the top individual in the matter of records. He hung up three new standards and tied another with his spectacular defensive play. The flash's three new records broke fielding performances of long standing.

1—Most world championships—Yankees, 10.

2—Team competing in most world series—Yankees, 14.

3—Player on most winning teams — Bill Dickey, Yankees, eight.

4—Pitcher allowing most hits and still pitching shutout—Spud Chandler, Yankees, 10 hits, fifth game. (Previous high was Christy Mathewson's eight-hit 3-0 10-inning shutout of Athletics for Giants in 1913.

5—Most chances accepted without error by a second baseman in a five-game series—Joe Gordon, Yankees, 43.

6—Most putouts made by a second baseman in a five-game series—Gordon, 20.

7—Most assists made by a second baseman in a five-game series—Gordon, 23.

8—Most hits by one club in a game without an extra base blow—Cardinals, 10, fifth game.

9—Largest attendance for five-game series—277,312.

10—Largest players' share in five-game series—$488,005.74.

11—Attendance for one game — 69,990 in third game at Yankee Stadium.

Records Tied

1—Player hitting safely in every game— Walker Cooper, Cards.

2—Assists by a first baseman in a five-game series—Ray Sanders, Cards, five.

3—Most assists by a second baseman in a single game—Gordon, eight, in first game.

4—Most assists by an outfielder in a five-game series— Stan Musial, Cards, two.

5—Most errors by a catcher in a five-game series— Walker Cooper, two.

6—Pitcher striking out first three men in first inning— Mort Cooper in fifth game.

7—Pitcher striking out three men in one inning—Ernie Bonham in sixth inning of second game and Mort Cooper first inning fifth game.

BAYS WALLOP DETROIT 35-14

Luckman Leads Bears To 20-0 Victory Over Cardinals

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 10 (AP)—The Green Bay Packers cleverly mixing their overhead game with a devastating ground attack, scored in every quarter today to smother the Detroit Lions, 35 to 14, in a National Football league game before a crowd of 22,000.

Unleasing the most diversified attack they have shown in years, the Packers completely dominated the play and seldom used their ace pass catcher, Don Hutson, in anything but decoy roles. They counted twice in the first quarter after marches of 42 and 61 yards, went 75 yards for a score in the second period, marched 67 for their fourth counter and 54 for the final marker. The Packers also tried three field goals without success.

Luckman's Passes Win for Bears

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP) — Sid Luckman threw his sixth and seventh touchdown passes of the season and his long aerials paved the way for a third score today as the Chicago Bears defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 20 to 0, in a National Football league game before 24,658 spectators in Wrigley Field.

Both Luckman's scoring passes were thrown in the third period, after the surprisingly strong Cardinals had shut out the Bears in the first half. Sid's first successful effort was thrown from the Bears' 42-yard line to End John Siegal on the Cards' 40. Siegal lateralled to Billy Geyer, who ran on to the touchdown.

Later in the same period Luckman tossed a pass to Connie Berry in a play covering 21 yards for the second Bear touchdown, with Bob Snyder kicking the extra point.

Redskins Beat Dodgers

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—The world champion Washington Redskins opened their 1943 campaign today with Slingin' Sammy Baugh pitching them to a 27-0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers before 35,540 spectators.

Baugh, showing the passing skill that carried the Redskins to the professional title last season, tossed to Halfback Wilbur Moore for a pair of touchdowns and set the stage for the other two scores with bullet-like heaves that caught Brooklyn's defense flatfooted.

It was Brooklyn's third straight defeat. The Dodgers have yet to score a point in league competition.

SUNDAY'S GAME

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 10 (AP)—Lefty Marius Russo carved out a great chunk of personal glory for himself Sunday before 36,196 sweltering fans by pitching and batting the New York Yankees to a 2 to 1 victory that gave New York a commanding three-games-to-one lead over the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1943 world series.

The ruddy-cheeked young southpaw, showing not the least sign of the sore arm which had bothered him for two seasons and cast doubt on the advisability of using him in the series at all, held the Redbirds to seven hits and could have had a shutout.

However, when sloppy support cost him a run to tie the score in the seventh inning, Russo came up with his second double of the contest and scored the deciding run.

Despite the heat which caused thousands of the spectators jammed in the stands to sit in their shirt sleeves, Russo performed effortlessly on the mound, kept ahead of almost every batter and by all odds produced the outstanding pitching job of the series to date.

TIMID BUYING TRIMS PRICES

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Light selling pressure, coupled with buying timidity, sufficed to put the stock market on a generally downward drift today and leaders were trimmed fractions to more than a point.

The list, moderately steady at the start, soon began to slip. A few recoveries cropped up near the close but these were unimpressive. Dealings were sluggish throughout.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .2 of a point at 49.7. Only 791 issues were traded. Of these, 432 were down, 178 up and 181 without variation. Transfers of 479,585 shares compared with 558,790 in the preceding 5-hour session.

Douglas Aircraft was an exception in the offside current, geting up 1 3-8, while Sperry advanced ¼. Short covering here on the idea the end of the world conflict was far from being in sight helped these stocks. Others managing to finish ahead moderately included International Harvester, Caterpillar Tractor, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Philadelphia Electric, Canadian Pacific and Philip Morris.

Prominent in the losing contingent were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Eastman Kodak, American Airlines, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Pepsi-Cola.

American Cyanamid "B" and Sherwin Williams were down a point or so each in the curb. Lesser casualties were Cities Service, Brewster Aero, Aluminum, Ltd., and Humble Oil. Modest improvement was retained by Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Salt Dome Oil and American Super Power. Turnover here was 141,090 shares versus 165,350 last Friday.

SOME FIRM SPOTS

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The bond market's major trend was downward today but the corporate list had a fair number of firm spots. Transactions totalled $6,498,000, face value, against $7,225,400 Friday.

While rails accounted for the principal trading activity some followers of this section of the market were inclined to stand aside pending final action on the Hobbs bill which would liberalize reorganization principles laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Losses ran from fractions to around a point for St. Paul 5s of '75, Rock Island 4s of '34, International Great Northern first 6s and New Haven convertible 6s. Gains of as much were recorded by North Western General Mortgage 5s, and 4½s of 2037, M-K-T 5s of '62 and 4½s of '78, and Morris & Essex 4½s of '55.

Utility and industrial loans shaded a little lower but here too there were rising exceptions. Foreign bonds were mixed and U. S. governments steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Although moderate mill buying gave the wheat market support at times today, final prices generally were lower on profit-taking, the possibility of increased marketings and a department of agriculture statement that less wheat than originally anticipated will be needed for industrial alcohol production.

Trading was light because of the holiday tomorrow, Columbus Day, and the October 1 government crop report due after the close. The government forecast a corn crop of 3,055,605,000 bushels against a September 1 estimate of 2,985,267,000 bushels. The upturn was about in line with trade expectations.

Oats and barley tended to follow wheat, but rye was independently strong on buying by commission houses with cash connections. At the close wheat was unchanged to ½ lower, December $1.52 3-4, May $1.52 1-8; rye was ¼ to 3-8 cent higher, December $1.10 3-8 to $1.10½; oats were ¼ lower to ¼ higher and barley was unchanged to 1-8 lower.

Wild Hoss Daley Nets 531 Yards In 4 Games

BY JERRY LISKA

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 11. (AP)—Gather round, folks, and listen to the gridiron music of Michigan's one-man band.

Known back in his native Minnesota as "Wild Hoss," and "Bill the Bull," navy trainee William E. Daley has been living up to those monickers and all the other nommes de plunge conjured since his arrival in Ann Arbor.

When he literally gave the shirt off his back in the Wolverine cause against Notre Dame last Saturday, Daley hoisted his rushing total in four games to 531 yards. Carrying the ball something like 67 times, Daley now has an average of almost seven yards per try.

The Wolverines registered a total of 963 yards from scrimmage in triumphs over Camp Grant, Western Michigan and Northwestern, and their loss to the Fighting Irish, making it rather apparent just what share of the freight Daley is hauling.

It was small wonder Daley looked at times last Saturday as though he just emerged from a cement mixer. He carried the ball no fewer than 24 times against one of the sharpest Notre Dame lines in history. In all, Daley bowled through the line, often with two or three brawny Irish astride his back, for 140 yards, giving him a net of 135 and an average of 5.6 yards per try.

Creighton Miller, who averaged almost 16 yards a try, only lugged the ball 10 times, while the most active Irish back was Jim Mello, who carried it 16 times for a net gain of 94 yards.

Daley's ball-carrying colleagues, Capt. Paul White, Elroy Hirsch and Bob Wiese, each wound up with a net gain of 25 yards. For Wiese, who was at his old fullback post most of the time, it was quite a comedown from his performance in Michigan's 32-20 win at South Bend a year ago. In that game, Wiese led in ground gaining with 114 yards in 26 tries.

It might be recalled that Michigan's first touchdown Saturday was a one-man show by Daley. To begin with, he intercepted a pass by Angelo Bertelli, quite a feat in itself, and tore 20 yards back to midfield. Then he bowled 23 yards and might have gotten away but for a corking tackle by Miller. Next he tossed a 23-yard pass to Art Renner, one of only four he has thrown all season. Finally, he climaxed the drive with a three

CHEMICAL CO. TO CLOSE DOWN

Operations Will Be Discontinued About Nov. 15

The Delta Chemical and Iron company will discontinue operations about Nov. 15 when the present supply of hardwood in the company's yards is exhausted, G. C. Craver, general manager, reported yesterday.

Whether the company will shut down operations never to resume again is still uncertain but company officials conceded that this is a definite possibility.

Shortage of chemical wood necessitates the shutdown, Craver said. The company closed its furnaces last January and has not produced any iron since that time. The closing of the furnace was necessitated by the fact that insufficient charcoal was available to maintain reasonable production and because the charcoal was vitally needed by the government for other war purposes.

For a limited time, an experiment was conducted in the manufacture of coke iron but this did not prove very successful and was abandoned after a couple of months.

Since January of this year, the company has concentrated upon the production of charcoal and wood chemicals, such as acetic acid, methanol and methyl acetone.

Under normal conditions, the company consumed about 4,700 cords of wood and produced about 2,000 tons of charcoal iron a month.

At peak capacity, the company employed about 175 persons but at present only 90 persons are employed. The firm has been operating at about half capacity for the past several months.

The chemical plant was started in 1912 as the Mashek Chemical company and the present owners purchased the business in 1915, changing the name to the Delta Chemical company.

In 1917, the Delta Chemical company purchased the Stephenson Charcoal Iron company, which was started in 1915 and which operated under contract with the chemical company. The name then was changed to the Delta Chemical and Iron company.

In 1920-21, a formaldehyde plant was constructed on the property site and was operated for two years by the M. J. Corbett company, which was in reality a subsidiary of the chemical company. In 1922 the entire operations were combined under the name of the Delta Chemical and Iron company.

Stockholm, Oct. 9, (AP)—A physician, who was described as recently having attended Benito Mussolini, was reported today in Stockholm to have said Mussolini had only six months to live.

Kryl Concert Brilliant Opening of Town Hall

Town Hall opened its 1943-44 season last evening with an audience which arrived well in advance of the opening hour to fill William W. Oliver Memorial Auditorium to its capacity, and which found its high spirits fully matched by an outstanding musical performance, the concert presented by the Kryl Symphony orchestra, magnificently conducted by Bohumir Kryl.

The symphony received applause that was little short of an ovation. Its soloists responded graciously to encores, and the final number of the ensemble was a signal for repeated and repeated applause which brought additional numbers in the popular vein to bring the concert to a brilliant finale.

Mr. Kryl, whom one might imagine conducting in the old world as it was before conflict replaced the fine arts, is an imposing figure, and to those close enough to the stage to see every movement of his expressive hands, his conducting was as fascinating as the music of his young players was beautiful.

In the first group presented by the symphony were two ensemble numbers, Overture to the opera, "The Bartered Bride," Smetana, and four movements of Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor, and a Saint-Saens selection which introduced Mary Lane Morris, violin soloist and concert mistress.

The second group opened with the colorful, melodic "Scheherazade," of Rimsky-Korsakov, in which the orchestra took full advantage of the interpretative possibilities offered by the composition. The music of the woodwinds was unusually lovely in the Strauss waltz "Tales of the Vienna Woods," and the arrangement of this popular number left nothing to be desired.

Soloist Applauded

Martha Jochem, harpist, and Arlene Kruse, soprano, whose numbers was "Caro Nome" received their well merited share of applause.

The program proper closed with full orchestra in Wagner's Prelude to "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg," but the audience demanded more, and Mr. Kryl and his musicians responded.

The Town Hall season will turn to lectures for some weeks to come and the next concert as the program is now arranged, will be the Orpheus Choral club. The coming number is scheduled for Monday, October 18, the much awaited appearance of Ely Culbertson, as a lecturer.

AGRICULTURE IS PROGRAM TOPIC

Delta Farmers Guests Of Escanaba Rotary Club Here Yesterday

The prospects and problems of agriculture in Delta county were discussed at a quiz program held yesterday noon by the Escanaba Rotary club in the Delta hotel, with three farmers from the county guests and speakers. E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, presented the questions, previously submitted to him by Rotary members.

Guests of the club were Clayton Ford, Ted MacFadden and Grey Knaus, all of Cornell township, and all successful farmers. They are sons of fathers who came to settle in Delta county from Kansas shortly after World War I. The program had been arranged by Carl Sawyer, chairman of the club's rural acquaintance committee.

In response to the questions, the three described how their families had moved to this county from Kansas because of the unfavorable weather conditions there, and the poor farming opportunities.

Prospect Is Good

Possibilities in Delta county are for the continued development of potato production and dairying they said. Potato production in the county varies, from farm to farm, because many growers have not yet learned or accepted the better practices of the others, they said.

"Progress has been made in the last four years," Knaus declared. "Milk production is up, and potato production is increasing fast. Back in 1921 I used to think 250 bushels to the acre was good, now unless I get 400 to the acre I consider it a crop failure."

In answer to a question on how they liked the way OPA was administering gasoline and tire rationing to the farmer, all said they did not like it. Their comments were:

"The OPA is making a crook out of every citizen in the country."

"Unless we can get enough gasoline we'll have to cut production."

"There is so much red tape in farm slaughtering permits that we quit it altogether."

Subsidies Unpopular

Replying to a question on the benefits they had received from the AAA, all three were emphatic in stating opposition to the federal agency. One said he disregarded it altogether, another criticized "the man who goes around with a little wheel, thinks he's a big shot, and can't add two and two," while one of the three defended the AAA as a necessary crop control organization "during the depression."

On the question of federal food subsidies, they said the farmer is now producing to his limit, has been for the past two years, and his trouble is one of manpower and machinery shortage, not subsidization.

"Why don't farmers buy more war bonds?" was another question.

The reply here was that the farmer for many years made only expenses, that his available money now is going into expansion to produce more food.

A question on what the Rotary club could do to aid agriculture in the county brought several suggestions: Encourage the underwriting of better seed purchases; establishment of a bull ring to improve the dairy herds; expansion of cold storage facilities — and "get out and get acquainted with the farmer and his problems."

Equinoxial Rains Just A Myth, Says Weather Observer

Henry E. Hathaway, meteorologist in charge of the local U. S. weather bureau, declares the recent absence of rains here shows that the equinoctial period does not produce rain as popularly characterized.

"The last days of September bring the usual popular talk about the coming of the so-called 'equinoctial storms,'" says Hathaway. "It is a fact that this age-old folklore often seems to have been verified by heavier storms than usual coming at this time. Frequently we have severe storms at this time of the year. They seem more severe than they really are, because we have just passed through a period when the storms have been unusually light. These are not storms due to the equinox, or the season when the sun passes the equator on its jurney south for the winter. They are caused by tropical storms or hurricanes which flourish at this time of the year. This year the sun crossed the equator on September 23 at 6;12 p. m. and to be exact for Escanaba on the minute it was exactly 6 p. m. central war time.

"The southward movement of the sun does not create the storms. They are the direct result of certain meterological conditions and geographical factors down in the trade wind belt of the tropics. There is no such thing as an 'equinoctial storm.' The sun happens to cross the equator in the fall of the year at the time the tropical storms and hurricanes are at their height. Some of the most severe storms have occurred at this time of the year, earlier in time in the south and later in the north.

"The records show that few storms come exactly on the day the sun crosses the line, and that the storms may come anywhere from the middle of September to the last of October."

Men In 2-C or 3-C Urged To Work In Woods This Winter

Draft registrants who are now classified in 2-C or 3-C because of essential agriculture endeavors are permitted to work in the woods during the off season on the farm and are urged to do so, the Delta county draft board emphasized yesterday.

Farmers who have received military deferments can change to woods work during the winter months without affecting their 2-C or 3-C classifications. They are advised, however to notify the draft boards of their changed status.

In an effort to screen out many men called for induction who have medical, educational or social backgrounds unfitted for military service, the selective service system is instituting two new questionnaires to be filled out by registrants reclassified to 1-A, and to new registrants as well. One of the questionnaires will be a medical and social questionnaire and the other will be educational in nature. The assistance of the schools, medical societies and hospitals will be invoked in order to get more information than is now possible concerning men called for military induction.

Telegraph Merger Is Now in Effect

"Consolidation of the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, which was effective Oct. 7, will mean more efficient written communications service for Escanaba people," it was stated yesterday by J. B. Gherna, local Western Union manager.

"Merger of the two telegraph networks will be in the best interests of the industry and the public," Mr. Gherna said. "Telegraphic service will be improved by eliminating uneconomic competition, which will permit the utilization of duplicate wire facilities, equipment and personnel for betterment and extension of telegraphic service

During the integration process the public will continue to see the Postal Telegraph sign, blue telegraph blanks and envelopes, and certain other Postal Telegraph forms, which will be used up in order to conserve materials under the current paper shortage.

"Although evidences of the Postal Telegraph system will not vanish over night, the public will nevertheless understand," Mr. Gherna pointed out, "that all telegraph offices will be under the same management regardless of the signs on the windows. Telegrams filed at any telegraph office, whether displaying a Western Union or Postal Telegraph sign, will be handled over the unified system."

"Local Postal Telegraph employees will be added to the Western Union service roll as of the effective date of the merger and will receive the same consideration and benefits as though they had been Western Union employees in the past. Postal Telegraph accounts receivable and payable will be taken over by Western Union, and payments for telegraph service heretofore billed by Postal should be made to Western Union," said Mr. Gherna.

Council Executive Board Of Scouts Meet On Thursday
